Thanks for the hint Mark, I wasn't aware of that!
If I may ask: How does "Save Page Now" handle dynamic sites?

What tool makes the screenshot?

Many web pages render very badly wh le pr nt ng (to pdf or paper), fail to archive In @ nternetarchive or archive is (though the ast 2 combined with saving the orig nal and archived nk in my blog queue is always my first try).

My blog at w ert me is mostly my off line memory and highly depend ng on archival Just look for [WayBack] and [Archive s]: those are all archived links.

So yes. I can do some digg ng, and a appreciate any fixing (see wiert.me/2017/10/13/enc)

Thanks for the response! Gory detai s always welcome. .s it an automated process when IA removes a domain from its arch ves due to robots.txt, or is there a review process? I'm try ng to understand how

User agent: ia_archiver
D sa low: /

affects IA. So they don't crawl.., 1/

Nathan Patin @NathanPat n 1 May 2018
... the site, but how, exactly, does that affect previous IA "snapshots"? Does the aforementioned robots.txt exclusion directive cause IA to retroactively remove a l snapshots from that doma n or just certa n ones? f the latter, how does IA know wh ch ones? 2/2

Michael L. Nelson @phonedude m n 1 May 018
t s automated; it's a way to automat.cally signa to the IA to redact existing mementos (archived pages). nothing is de eted, on y redacted syntax can al ow for redacting specific UR.s; see robotstxt org/robotstxt htm

Nathan Patin @NathanPat n Jul 22
Michael, I'm back w/ more q.est ons :)

Has @.nternetarchive changed its po.icy on robots.txt so that it ignores a l exclusions? (I know it did for mil & .gov doma ns a whi e back - now for al domains?)

f so, retroactive redactions via robots.txt are gone, right?

Michael L. Nelson @phonedude m n Jul 22 but, for example, this robots.txt is now ignored

b og re dreport.com/robots.txt

and yes, when they decide to ignore it, the previous y redacted pages are then visib e aga n

Nathan Patin @NathanPat n Jul 22
Thanks for the rep ies! A couple th ngs. Can you tel the difference b/w a page that has been excluded bc of robots.txt and a page that has been excluded bc the doma n owner reached out to @ nternetarchive?

Nathan Patin @NathanPat n Jul 22
And the retroactive de etions come back_ when a doma n removes the robots.txt exc us on?

Michael L. Nelson @phoned.de m n Jul 22
1. yes, you can often tel the reason why the U wi l have a phrase, as will the HTTP response headers. Presumably there cou d be situations in which a phrase is not provided

2. yes, when robots.txt is ignored, the pages "come back"; note redact on ! deletion

Nathan Patin @NathanPat n Jul 22
1. Can you expand on that? I'm fami iar w/ "Th s URL has been excluded from the Wayback Machine," but that message doesn t tel you why (e.g. robots.txt vs ema l request)

2. Uuu there shou d be a lot of pages coming back if Wayback is indeed gnoring more and more robots.txt!

Fo low

Replying to @NathanPatin @phonedude m n @ nternetarch ve

When you see the word "excluded", in nearly every instance, it means the Internet Archive has gotten a request by a rights holder for their content to be excluded. It is NOT about robots.txt.

First time, just hung...
Turned off VPN, same thing
Then got bad Gateway 502
Then a 302 error another time
Then got what appears to be the actual page

I've noticed this a lot in recent months. Maybe it's on my end

One factor is to get access to the specific books we want to digitize. E.g. the millions that are referenced in Wikipedia Articles. Getting those books is more difficult than one might think. :-) And, libraries are not contributing "hundreds of thousands" of books to us.

Donald Trump once stated explicitly that he believes that it was Ukraine -- not Russia -- that meddled in the 2016 election because Vladimir Putin "told me"

Trump became more insistent after his private meeting with Putin in July 2017 at the G20 summit.

'm going to be home in 20 and will check. But I really expected more. I've read those provisions of the MMA and they don t just extend 108(h).

Zvi S. Rosen @zvisrosen 4h

So, I re-read the MMA, and it does indeed state that 108(h) applies to pre-72s, and that for 108(h), the "last 20" window commences as of the enactment of the law. I must have missed that, as I'm sure many others did as well. So that's the legal basis. /1

In an effort to be a more informed citizen I just watched the 2010 documentary "American Coup" amazon.com/American-Coup- ... about the US and Iran. It is vital that we understand the events of 1953-1979-2010 as related and connected. Thank you @Circlione #PeaceWithIran

This is interesting take. The 'secret' @boztank Facebook post published by @nytimes more & more suspicious. It mainstreamed disinfo about Cambridge Analytica via news org that helped break it. And we know it's a story that personally aggravates Facebook head of comms, Nick Clegg

> Brooke Binkowski @brooklynmarie
> I believe that the Teen Vogue debacle, much like yesterday's confessional from "Boz," was a reaction to Brittany Kaiser's leaks re Cambridge Analytica showing just how weapons-grade disinformation is deployed against voting populations to affect elections

The indexes of the Wayback Machine have been falling behind in some cases. If you wait a few days your archived URLs (Tweets in this case) will be available for playback.

Thanks, Mark! What's the root cause—not enough funding for enough indexing servers? A sudden influx? I always donate a little; your work is critically important.

More $/servers would help. And while there WAS a sudden influx of some very large web-based objects, that pushed some things over the edge this week, we have been, in general terms, increasing our throughput faster than we have been adding capacity. Thank you for your support!

Nothing to fix here. The URL you are trying to play back has been "excluded" by the Wayback Machine. This means exclusion was requested by a rights owner.

If that's the case, why is it that when I input the URL into web.archive.org it is still accepted and shown as successfully archived? (On the other hand inputting into archive.org/web/ does show the Excluded message before any archiving takes place.)

BP-BBP-B @bipbapbee · 23h

I guess what I mean is, when inputting into web.archive.org, I'd expect the outcome to be user is immediately shown the Excluded msg

Instead the outcome is website archiving occurs user is provided link of archive user is shown Excluded msg upon clicking link

I understand the question to not be about archives excluded from the Wayback Machine, but rather rate of new archives added, for a given URL, over time. If that is the case there is no simple answer as the reasons a given URL may be archived are many. Please DM me if you want.

SCOWCROFT: I'll start. First, some general remarks. Mine would be that it's always more exciting to be the adviser, but if you are not the honest broker, you don't have the confidence of the other members of the NSC. If you don't have their confidence, then the system doesn't work, because they will go around you to get to the president and then you fracture the system.

My sense is that in order for the system to work, you first have to establish yourself in the confidence of your colleagues to convince them you are not going to pull fast ones on them. That means when you are in there with the president alone, which you are more than anybody else, that you will represent them fairly.

And if you begin with that, I don't know that there is much conflict. It seems to me that the first responsibility is to present what you know of the community views. And after you have done that, then you are free to be an adviser

This is not making the international headlines but Italy ordered to quarantine a number of towns where most cases of COVID19 have been reported, effectively limiting free circulation of people in and out of these areas. I believe this is a first in the country's history.

I did some research on this for SSCI back in 2018, earlier this month went back to the platform-provided data and pulled everything from FB & Insta from Apr 2015 thru July 2016. This is 16k FB and 40k Insta posts during a broad definition of the primary period

One of the less reported aspects of Grenell's placement as acting DNI is his demand to see all the "raw intelligence" behind the assessment that Russia is working to sabotage US elections. This has serious national security implications. 1/3

This is the tactic Steve Cambone used in the run up to the Iraq War when Cheney and Rumsfeld installed him in DOD to set up their own intel operation. He then cherry-picked raw, unvetted data to "prove" Saddam had WMD. He bypassed the usual intel community joint assessments. 2/3

Joe Cirincione @[illegible] · 4m

Worse, raw intel will include sources and methods. Grenell will pass that to Trump who could share it with the Russians. Cambone never would have shared intel with our enemies, but Trump and Grenell don't see Russia as an adversary, but an ally. 3/3

Looks like the biggest lie Trump told pre-election was that he'd spend $1B of his money to win. Apparently he spent 7.5% of that—and the rest came from Kremlin cash funneled through the NRA, Saudi/Emirati money funneled through microtransactions, and a small bit from Americans.

U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
1600 Clifton Road
Atlanta, GA 30329-4027

Dear Director Redfield:

I am concerned by your decision to stop publicly reporting the number of Americans tested for Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) on your agency's website.

Until last night, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reported publicly on its website the number of travel-related COVID-19 cases in the United States, the number of person-to-person spread COVID-19 cases, the total number of persons tested for COVID-19, and the number of deaths attributable to COVID-19.[1] Inexplicably today, the CDC's public webpage dedicated to COVID-19 data no longer displays how many persons have been tested for, or who have died from, COVID-19. I would like to know why.

Americans are dying. We deserve to know how many Americans have perished from COVID-19, and we deserve to know how many people have been tested for it. According to former Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, Scott Gottlieb, "Right now there's probably hundreds or low thousands of cases... that aren't reported yet."[2] Knowing that CDC testing is keeping pace with the likely number of cases is imperative to maintaining public trust. With that in mind, when will you return to publicly reporting the total number of deaths and tested persons on your website?

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Mark Pocan
Member of Congress

"This is just my hunch," Trump said, making false statements & irresponsible suggestions to Sean Hannity and millions of viewers cnn.it/38mpQFK

In a phoner with Hannity on Wednesday night Trump reacted to the World Health Organization's data-driven assessment of the global death rate for the novel coronavirus -- 3.4% -- by saying "I think the 3.4% is really a false number."

"Now, this is just my hunch," Trump said, which should have spurred Hannity to interrupt, but he didn't. so Trump continued. "based on a lot of conversations with a lot of people that do this because a lot of people will have this, and it's very mild. they'll get better very rapidly. they don't even see a doctor. they don't even call a doctor -- you never hear about those people. so you can't put them down in the category of the overall population. in terms of this corona flu. and/or virus. So you just can't do that."

Trump continued by discarding his own administration's advice to stay home if you're feeling sick. "If we have thousands or hundreds of thousands of people that get better just by. you know. sitting around and even going to work, some of them go to work, but they get better. and then when you do have a death, like you've had in the state of Washington. like you had one in California. I believe you had one in New York." No deaths have been reported in New York.

"You know," Trump said. "all of a sudden it seems like 3 or 4%. which is a very high number, as opposed to a fraction of 1%. But again. they don't know about the easy cases because the easy cases don't go to the hospital. They don't report to doctors or the hospital in many cases. So I think that that number is very high. I think the number. personally. I

Just Now: Seasoned judge, appointed by Republican president, says AG Barr's credibility is in doubt. Walton argues the way Barr spun Mueller investigation appeared "calculated" to help @realdonaldtrump and hurts DOJ credibility too.

Attorney General Barr's April 18, 2019 letter. And, the Court cannot reconcile certain public representations made by Attorney General Barr with the findings in the Mueller Report. The inconsistencies between Attorney General Barr's statements, made at a time when the public did not have access to the redacted version of the Mueller Report to assess the veracity of his statements, and portions of the redacted version of the Mueller Report that conflict with those statements cause the Court to seriously question whether Attorney General Barr made a calculated attempt to influence public discourse about the Mueller Report in favor of President Trump despite certain findings in the redacted version of the Mueller Report to the contrary.

These circumstances generally, and Attorney General Barr's lack of candor specifically call into question Attorney General Barr's credibility and in turn, the Department's

I didn't vote for Biden in the CA primary, but let me offer a consolation. On nuclear disarmament, he has an excellent record--as progressive as anyone. He single-handedly stopped efforts at the beginning of the Obama Administration to resume designing new nuclear weapons.

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Vice President Joseph Biden in early June blocked a Defense Department bid to revive a defunct program aimed at fielding modern nuclear warheads across the strategic arsenal, according to those familiar with the episode (see GSN, June 24).

Defense Secretary Robert Gates raised the idea of reinstating the controversial Reliable Replacement Warhead effort during a secret "Principals' Committee" meeting convened by the National Security Council, Global Security Newswire has learned.

In pursuing the initiative, Gates appears to have won the backing of some pivotal Cabinet secretaries, including Secretary of State Hillary Clinton. One administration-watcher -- a critic of the replacement-warhead idea -- alleges that several key appointees at the Defense and State departments are now "scheming and maneuvering" to bring the program back to life.

However, Biden has strongly opposed the move, based on the view that pursuing a new U.S. warhead program could undermine Washington's efforts to discourage nuclear weapons proliferation around the globe.

Hello folks. Rita Wilson and I want to thank everyone here Down Under who are taking such good care of us. We have Covid-19 and are in isolation so we do not spread it to anyone else. There are those for whom it could lead to a very serious illness. We are taking it one-day-at-a-time. There are things we can all do to get through this by following the advice of experts and taking care of ourselves and each other, no? Remember, despite all the current events, there is no crying in baseball. Hanx

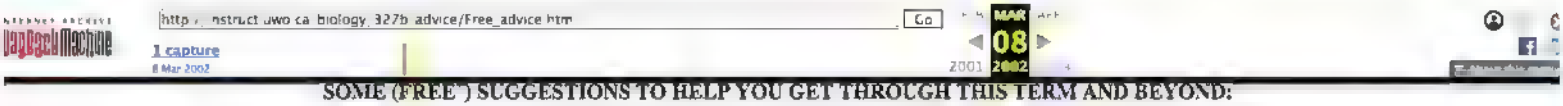
In these stressful times, I'd like to share (thank to the @.nternetarcn ve) some (free*) advice from Dr. Charlie Trick that I've appreciated ever since I first read it back in the 90's in the syllabus for Biology 327 (Productivity and Pollution in Aquatic Ecosystems).



SOME (FREE*) SUGGESTIONS TO HELP YOU GET THROUGH THIS TERM AND BEYOND:
(*confirming that you get what you pay for)

1. Make mistakes - if you don't make mistakes then you're not really trying
2. Stop tolerating in your leaders what you wouldn't tolerate in your friends
3. Read one book a month - not one that you've been told to read. Just go to the library and look for a book that says "Read Me" and then "go" for it
4. Listen to your voices - the wee inner voices (You may make mistakes but they won't be boring).
5. Eat healthy foods - but don't be a nut about it.
6. Eat Italian food with friends. It s impossible to be miserable while eating Italian food.
7. Have candlelight in your life. You decide when and where
8. If you decide that something is wrong, then work for change.
9. Watch at least one foreign or black-and-white film each month.
10. Tell your government to spend taxes on education, not on the environment. If you give the young a thoughtful, truthful education then we will have a population equipped to protect the world
11. Be prepared and be involved. The world won't wait for you.
12. Always, always, study, think and question
13. Once in a while, try to ask yourself why you are here, you might surprise yourself with the answer.
14. Bring your notebook to the lab and tutorial each and every week

I was just out on 14th St in DC to get an item from a hardware store. Bars were packed. You'd think DC is a town full of bright news-junkies who get it. Not so. You people are recklessly putting your own life at risk, & that of others you interact with. I wish I was exaggerating.

Not true, @realDonaldTrump. I wrote to you more than 600 days ago demanding answers after you fired the entire White House pandemic team.

United States Senate

May 18, 2018

President Donald Trump
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Northwest
Washington, DC 20500

Dear President Trump,

Recent events remind us that global health security must remain a national security priority. The ongoing Ebola outbreak in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) has caused 23 deaths and 44 cases since April 2018. This is DRC's ninth Ebola outbreak, but thanks to strategic investments in public health infrastructure by the United States and other global partners, the DRC is better equipped to respond to this outbreak. However, as we learned with the 2014 Ebola outbreak, diseases can quickly cross borders and become epidemics of international concern. In fact, the World Health Organization (WHO) has noted that the proximity of the currently-affected area to other countries and urban centers increases the risk of spreading Ebola. Global health security requires adequate coordination led by the White House as well as committed, long-term funding and resources. When faced with a threat as deadly as Ebola, we cannot afford to walk back our ability to prepare for pandemic diseases. Accordingly, I urge you to act quickly to designate senior-level National Security Council (NSC) personnel to focus on global health security while maintaining funding for critical global health security initiatives.

National Security Council: I am concerned by Rear Admiral Timothy Ziemer's departure from the NSC, elimination of his global health security office, and reassignment of the office's team members.[2] Global health security is a national security priority. Maintaining the NSC's global health security office is key to this prioritization. There needs to be one person at the NSC, with the backing of a capable team, who can coordinate across agencies to ensure that we have the resources necessary to guard against and respond to any outbreak that threatens the United States.

Funding for global health programs: The Administration's proposed budget cuts threaten our ability to respond to a public health emergency. The Global Health Security Agenda (GHSA) is a global partnership that strengthens our ability to prevent, detect, and respond to infectious disease threats. Funding for this important initiative is set to expire in 2019. Reports indicate that a lack of resources will force the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to narrow its GHSA activities from 49 countries to 10 countries, a cut of 80 percent.[3] DRC, home of the aforementioned Ebola outbreak, is one of the countries where activities will be scaled back, putting Americans at home and abroad at greater risk of Ebola.

Ebola funding rescissions: The Administration's recent rescissions proposal contains a $252 million cut to Fiscal Year 2015 emergency funding appropriated for the Ebola response. The Office of Management and Budget proposal states, "These funds remain from the initial outbreak in 2015 and are no longer needed because the Ebola response has largely concluded. Enacting the rescission would therefore not impact the Ebola response."[4] Rescinding this money now is penny wise and pound foolish.

As evidenced by the recent outbreak in the DRC and the comments of health experts, these funds are still needed.[5] According to an analysis by the Kaiser Family Foundation, $3.74 billion of the total $5.4 billion in Ebola funding was set aside for international response and the rest was designated for research and development, capacity-building, and domestic response.[6] These are ongoing activities and the expenditure periods for many programs are ongoing. The importance of such strategic long-term investments cannot be understated. With these investments, the United States government safeguards our nation's health and security at home while saving taxpayer dollars in the long term. Now is not the time to cut these funds.

In our globalized world, where diseases are never more than a plane ride away, we must do all we can to prepare for the next, inevitable outbreak and keep Americans safe from disease. I urge you to act swiftly in reaffirming your commitment to global health security by taking immediate action to designate senior-level NSC personnel to focus on global health security, supporting adequate and appropriate funding for global health security initiatives, and leading the way in preparing for the next pandemic threat.

Sincerely,

Sherrod Brown
United States Senator

@Yamiche: Why did you shut down the pandemic office in the White House

Trump first calls it a "nasty question." Then says someone else shut it down. "I don't know anything about it."

Video of my question to @realDona dTrump today on his administration's disbanding of the White House team responsible for coordinating responses to pandemics.

He called my question nasty & said he knew nothing about it.

I call it a relevant, fair, and truth-seeking question.

This not-yet-released HHS report on COVID-19 projects an 18-month-long tsunami of nationwide disease and death. The Trump administration could've stemmed the tide but looked the other way until it was too late. If he had an ounce of decency, he'd resign.

The battle to prevent Americans from understanding what he did to minimize the danger in January to March is going to be one of the biggest propaganda and freedom of information fights in modern US history. politico.com/news/2020/03/0 ... The term cover up won't begin to describe it.

The same provisos from "Save Page Now" apply – there are some pages where it won't work, and it only saves one page at a time. One plus to installing the extension though is that now as you surf around, when you run into a missing page we will alert you if we have a saved copy

Great idea. I tried the first way, just to save a page on one of my websites, and it said Sorry, This page has been excluded. All my sites (and most pages now) are https for safety. But they are open to bots! Ideas?

Mike Hucka @mhucka · 3h
I think I've seen that happen, but in my use it's been rare. It might have to do with the domain, IIRC, some sites/hosts request that archiving is not permitted. What is the domain of the page in question? Maybe we can find out if that's what's going on

Donna Barstow Cartoonist for LA Times & New Yorker @Taylor · 3h
I'm pretty sure I fixed my robot.txt to a low a.i. OpEdCartoo
s the main site

Mike Hucka @mhucka · 2h
OK, yeah, I see the same message ("This URL has been excluded") for the top-level page when I try it. Based on help.archive.org/hc/en-us/artic It seems possible something in robots.txt might still be interfering. I don't work for IA and don't know more, but maybe @MarkGraham has ideas?

"excluded" suggests the URL(s) in question was excluded because of a request from a rights owner, not related to robots.txt

Hi @MarkGraham, are there delays between actual saving of a WayBack URL and the archived URL becoming available?

I saved via github.com/chenal/gr...b4d via web.archive.org/save which indicated a success at web.archive.org/web/20200409... which took some 5 minutes to become live

For the most part... no. But the system has a lot of moving pieces and they are moving very quickly these days.

So, if you experienced a delay I guess there was a delay :-)

Glad we could be of service and thank you for your support!

No problem, and thanks for getting back.

As I could not find any WayBack machine status page, this was more of a heads-up just n case someth ng odd is occurring

By now things are way faster again and appending a URL to web archive org/save/ is also working more of the time

BTW... the service you asked about (Save Page Now) is processing 10s of millions of URLs/day. The load goes up, and down, depending on what is submitted by patrons of the service. From time to time there will be slowdowns.

Bad news: the @waybackmachine has apparently stopped taking snapshots of @mnhealth's #COVID19 situation updates. Was doing multiple snapshots per day, but nothing since Thursday morning. Researchers + press use those snapshots to get past data (since DH isn't sharing it)

Under normal conditions, all of the 10s of millions of URLs archived every day, via the Save Page Now feature of the Wayback Machine, are available to the public without any delay. However various error conditions can cause delays from time to time.

Why do reputable news organizations carry these daily Trump press conferences live?

They are filled with misinformation and propaganda. From the President himself, no less.

The country would be far better served and informed if they used highlights later.

Enough is enough.

Don't understand your question. I DO use the HMB's virtual (e.g. eBook) services. I also use the @internetarchive's National Emergency Library (NEL). It is not an either/or but an and/plus. Fact is, there is no otherwise available eBook for the vast majority of books in the NEL

I am very sorry if I gave that impression. The fact is our local HMB library (which I LOVE, frequent, and was at the opening ceremony of, etc.) IS doing a great and important service for the community by keeping their physical facilities closed to the public

So Tuesday, will have a new book out on the history of disinformation – and to show that it doesn't have disinformation in it, I felt I needed to show my work, especially my sources. So I did a few things differently

2 4 22

Thomas Rid @RidT · Apr 19

Now, you'd think citing sources is easy. It's not. Especially not when there's a URL involved. Because "link rot." URLs wither, and they wither quickly. Even some of the best publishers, journals, and even historians get this wrong, consistently. And inexplicably

1 11

Thomas Rid @RidT · Apr 19

Example, how not to cite, from Christopher Andrew, THE SECRET WORLD, Yale UP, 2018, p. 875 (I believe this link was dead even before the book was published).

Internet Archive is a non-profit digital library offering millions of free books, movies, & audio files, plus billions of saved web pages in the Wayback Machine @internetarchive Even though you guys can't really give a solid time frame, since it's unpredictable, when would you generally say the video indexes for the archived YouTube videos start working again? I've noticed some issues, but no big worries.

Indexes for most videos archived in the Wayback Machine are available now.

Others may take days or weeks to build.

Please DM me specifics and I will try to give you more/better information.

Nothing was "removed" and no data has been lost. However some of our indexes have fallen behind, they will "catch up".

Please share specific playback URLs you have questions about. Thank you!

Just a shoutout to the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence for making ACTIVE MEASURES, my new history book, newsworthy today, on pub day.

SSCI has a report out just now that calls out the intelligence community for their weak disinformation history intelligence.senate.gov/sites/default/...

(U) The Committee acknowledges that the purpose of the ICA was not to present a comprehensive historical perspective, and that the authors were working under significant time constraint, yet the direction received from the President asked for context for the 2016 election by looking at foreign interference in the 2008 and 2012 elections.

(U) The Committee notes there is no historical precedent for the use of cyber intrusions followed by release of stolen information (i.e., hacks and leaks) used in combination with other elements of state activity for the purposes of an active measures campaign against the United States. However, the ICA's treatment of the historical context of Russian interference in U.S.

That would mean trump was informed of the virus threat about once a week for two months. And ignored it. Now Americans are dead. Mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, grandmothers, grandfathers, friends and co-workers are needlessly gone.

BREAKING: ICANN has voted to REJECT the sale of the .ORG registry to private equity firm Ethos Capital. This is a major victory for the millions of nonprofits, civil society organizations, and individuals who make .ORG their home online. #SaveDotOrg

ICANN Board Withholds Consent for a Change of Control of the Public Interest Registry (PIR)

Today, the ICANN Board made the decision to reject the proposed change of control and entity conversion requests that Public Interest Registry (PIR) submitted to ICANN.

After completing extensive due diligence, the ICANN Board finds that withholding consent of the transfer of PIR from the Internet Society (ISOC) to Ethos Capital is reasonable and the right thing to do.

To be clear the reopen movement isn't ONLY anti-vaxx, as I've reported extensively. It's a rat king of anti-vaxx, militia, tea-party types, infowars army, white power extremists and sure, a few folks who want to go back to work. But anti-vaxxers are an oversized piece.

Really important advice from @edyong209. Beware overblown warnings relative to Covid-19. The virus is bad enough to justify extreme caution. Testing and evidence should drive all decisions.

Though Judy Mikovits may be new to you, she's a known entity in anti-vaccination circles, a wild conspiracy theorist, and a discredited researcher who has done real damage to people suffering from real illnesses.

In the video, she claims she was effectively silenced and that she was "held in jail with no charges" in her fight against mainstream science

In reality, after Mikovits was fired from her research job at the nonprofit Whittemore Peterson Institute, "she took her lab materials and computer, she ran away to California, and she got arrested," Vastag said. She was released from jail when the institute declined to press charges.

Vastag said she has since used the anti-vaccine community to push her story as a pariah, and that her efforts to push her repeatedly debunked and retracted work are well known among those with ME/CFS

"Most in the community understand her work is discredited," Vastag said. "She's completely cemented herself as a fringe figure."

YouTube and Facebook and Twitter have made moves to stop the spread of this video, which suggested people not wear masks and heal themselves with beach sand, but only after it had been seen millions of times. And as @BostonJoan explains, late removal is a big part of the allure.

"The aura of limited-edition content is a promotional strategy for these media manipulators," Joan Donovan, director of Harvard University's Technology and Social Change Research Project, said in a text message. "In knowing they will be removed from the major platforms, they create a hype cycle around the piece of content, which would probably only get marginal engagement if it was Simplifying a bit: most websites include a file called robots.txt that is a list of pages or parts of the site that the owner does NOT want visited by automated crawling robots (i.e. Google, but also archival services).

The problem then is archiving parts of sites on this list

Engel Statement on the Firing of Inspector General Linick

May 15, 2020 May 16, 2020

Washington—Representative Eliot L. Engel, Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs this evening made the following statement on the President's removal of State Department Inspector General Steve Linick:

"This firing is the outrageous act of a President trying to protect one of his most loyal supporters, the Secretary of State, from accountability. I have learned that the Office of the Inspector General had opened an investigation into Secretary Pompeo. Mr. Linick's firing amid such a probe strongly suggests that this is an unlawful act of retaliation.

"This President believes he is above the law. As he systematically removes the official independent watchdogs from the Executive Branch, the work of the Committee on Foreign Affairs becomes that much more critical. In the days ahead, I will be looking into this matter in greater detail and will press the State Department for answers.

"I thank Mr. Linick for his distinguished service.

Obama's speech to high school graduates reminds me how much I miss inspiration and leadership in the White House. Trump goes after Obama because he so jealous of someone who was a true leader. Trump will never be anything but a cheap crook, no matter how long he stays in office.

It's understandably tough in so many ways being a journalist right now, but if I was in the WH press corps I wouldn't even ask these sorts of Qs. Not asking has major downsides, of course, but Qs like this give him free air time to promote propaganda.

Mike, that's not the whole truth, but never let truth get in the way of faux rage in the hope of clout.

The internet archive's "emergency library" observes few of the principles of a library, and many of a repository acting as a source of piracy.

Ted, both CNN and Twitter can be sued for defamation for content they themselves produce. Both CNN and Twitter are immune from lawsuits for content created by 3rd party users of their site that they did not create.

They both get the same protections.

Tonight civil rights leaders joined Mark Zuckerberg and Sheryl Sandberg to discuss FB's decision to allow Trump's post. It didn't go well.

Vanita Gupta, Sherrilyn Ifill and Rashad Robinson just released the following statement:

> We are disappointed that [illegible] has not provided an adequate explanation for allowing one of President Trump's most dangerous posts to remain up. Rather than [illegible] Trump's call for violence against protesters, Mark is setting a very dangerous precedent for other voices who may cause harmful damage on Facebook.

Hi, I need your help! An art thief posted my work to reactor sites and Archive Org took captures of my stolen art. I sent a DMCA request, but my art was only removed from 2 places. I sent a second email with the other 3 collections with my stolen art. Please help!

Remember when Trump said "I could stand in the middle of 5th Avenue and shoot somebody and I wouldn't lose voters..."

We are there.

It is past time to take his hand off the button, and remove him from office.

Sorry. Obviously, we thought it was pretty odd & didn't mean to imply it was deleted. My guess was an infrastructure problem.

(Truly, when I loaded the snapshots overview, it said there was just 1. When you replied & your links worked, I figured I'd borked the URL somehow!)

      Tangentially related: Americans need to travel more. When you spend time as a guest in a foreign country it changes the way you view your own country's relations with that country. It's a shame that many Americans would be too ashamed/scared/apologetic wrt so many countries now

      I'm frustrated with a lot of reporting this week. The WSJ ran an opinion piece that I refuse to link about the myth of systemic police racism. I submitted my thoughts to our survey at work about their response & I did not do so anonymously. I don't care about blowback either.

      My white conservative cousin sent me an email a day or so ago and referenced that piece. He cancelled his subscription that same day. Even as a conservative, he was appalled.

When a paper publishes an editorial, it lends its authority & above all RESOURCES to the author. Not only does Tom Cotton get the IQ boost of Times typeface, he gets editors, copy eds, & fact-checkers who are charged with burnishing his argument to give it the best possible shot.

The NYT is very much the oppos te of a "p.atform." As someone who once had to rewr te...N*wt Gingrich.. to make h s argument even track, I can testify that it takes a ot of work to make a Gingr ch or Cotton sound even just norma Sound...fit to print

If it was extremely important to showcase the extraordinary and chal enging views & voice of Tom Cotton, it m ght've been enl ghten ng to read a draft entirely written & reported by Cotton. No ghostwriter, no ed ting, no fact checking

MEMORANDUM FOR CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE ARMY
COMMANDANT OF THE MARINE CORPS
CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS
CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE AIR FORCE
CHIEF OF THE NATIONAL GUARD BUREAU
COMMANDANT OF THE COAST GUARD
CHIEF OF SPACE OPERATIONS
COMMANDERS OF THE COMBATANT COMMANDS

SUBJECT: Message to the Joint Force

1. Every member of the U.S. military swears an oath to support and defend the Constitution and the values embedded within it. This document is founded on the essential principle that all men and women are born free and equal, and should be treated with respect and dignity. It also gives Americans the right to freedom of speech and peaceful assembly. We in uniform – all branches, all components, and all ranks – remain committed to our national values and principles embedded in the Constitution.

2. During this current crisis, the National Guard is operating under the authority of state governors to protect lives and property, preserve peace, and ensure public safety.

3. As members of the Joint Force – comprised of all races, colors, and creeds – you embody the ideals of our Constitution. Please remind all of our troops and leaders that we will uphold the values of our nation, and operate consistent with national laws and our own high standards of conduct at all times.

We all committed our lives to the idea that is America — we will stay true to that oath and the American People

Center for Community Change Action runs a Super PAC, set up in March 2016, called Immigrant Voters Win. [1] The Super PAC raised more than $10 million for the 2016 presidential election, with the largest single donation of $3 million coming from George Soros. [2] Hedge fund manager and prominent Democratic donor James Simons kicked in another $500,000. The Super PAC spent more than $3 million promoting the unsuccessful presidential candidacy of Hillary Clinton and hundreds of thousands more to benefit the campaigns of Senate candidates Michael Bennet (D-Colorado), Catherine Cortez Masto (D-Nevada), and Patrick Murphy (D-Florida). Immigrant Voters Win spent additional funds opposing Republicans, including presidential candidates Donald Trump and Sen. Marco Rubio (R-

The pandemic has shut down schools and libraries worldwide. How can students get books? From the Internet Archive, of course, which has scanned millions of books it owns. @internetarchive loans these books out - not downloadable. 1/4

Sounds great, right? Authors and publishers don't lose money because the students would have borrowed the books from libraries.
But no, because some publishers decided to sue @internetarchive ... aiming to crush it out of existence. 2/4

Their argument. The poor writers, etc. For example: Sylvia Plath (although she died in 1963) and C.S. Lewis' Christian writing (also died in 1963) and Laura Ingalls Wilder (died in 1957) are specifically named among the authors apparently injured by this. 3/4

      Hopefully Trump goes down in history as a "stress test" that made the system stronger as America rejected his presidency. To some extent we can inoculate ourselves to make his kind less likely to win office. Using "Trumpian" tactics will lead to scorn and ridicule

Study: Unvaccinated Children Have Better Health Than Their Vaccinated Peers

BY ILENE ENG June 6, 2020 Updated: June 6, 2020

A A Print

SANTA CLARA, Calif.—In a recent study, researchers found that children who were vaccinated in the early stages of their lives showed more health problems than their unvaccinated peers.

A peer-reviewed study compared the health outcomes of vaccinated versus unvaccinated infants and children across the United States.

In a sample of 2,000 boys and girls born between November 2003 and June 2013, the study found that vaccinated children showed a higher chance of developmental delays, asthma, ear infections, and gastrointestinal disorders later in their development.

If we excluded a URL from the Wayback Machine (e.g. because of a claim from a rights holder) you would see the term "Excluded" on the page.

In this case I am fairly sure what you are seeing is a bug. Please provide specific URLs so I can investigate further.

A group of former national security officials has filed an amicus brief in the Flynn case, alleging that DOJ misconstrued FBI's need to seek out intel that is a threat to national security and not necessarily a simple criminal matter:

I. INTEREST OF AMICI

Amici curiae are The Steady State, an association of former national security officials of the United States, as well as additional former national security officials, who share an abiding interest in safeguarding U.S. national security and intelligence interests and have decades of experience in doing so. The members of The Steady State and the individual amici have served in the U.S. national security and intelligence communities, under both Democratic and Republican administrations, as intelligence officers, defense policymakers, diplomats, and congressional staffers. Members of amicus The Steady State include the individuals listed in an Appendix to this brief. The Appendix also includes a list of the additional amici.

Amici believe that arguments advanced by the Department of Justice ("DOJ") in its motion to dismiss the criminal information against Defendant Michael T. Flynn misapprehend the role of intelligence agencies such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation ("FBI" or "Bureau") and are inconsistent with U.S. national security interests and with the rule of law that is critical to those interests. Were the Court to accept DOJ's parsimonious view of the circumstances in which FBI counterintelligence agents may properly interview a witness and of the materiality of statements made during those interviews, the ability of the intelligence community to gather accurate information and to identify potential threats to national security interests of the United States would be severely compromised. Amici hope that their views as former members of the national security and intelligence communities will assist the Court in understanding the many legitimate bases for and the clear materiality of misstatements made during Mr. Flynn's FBI

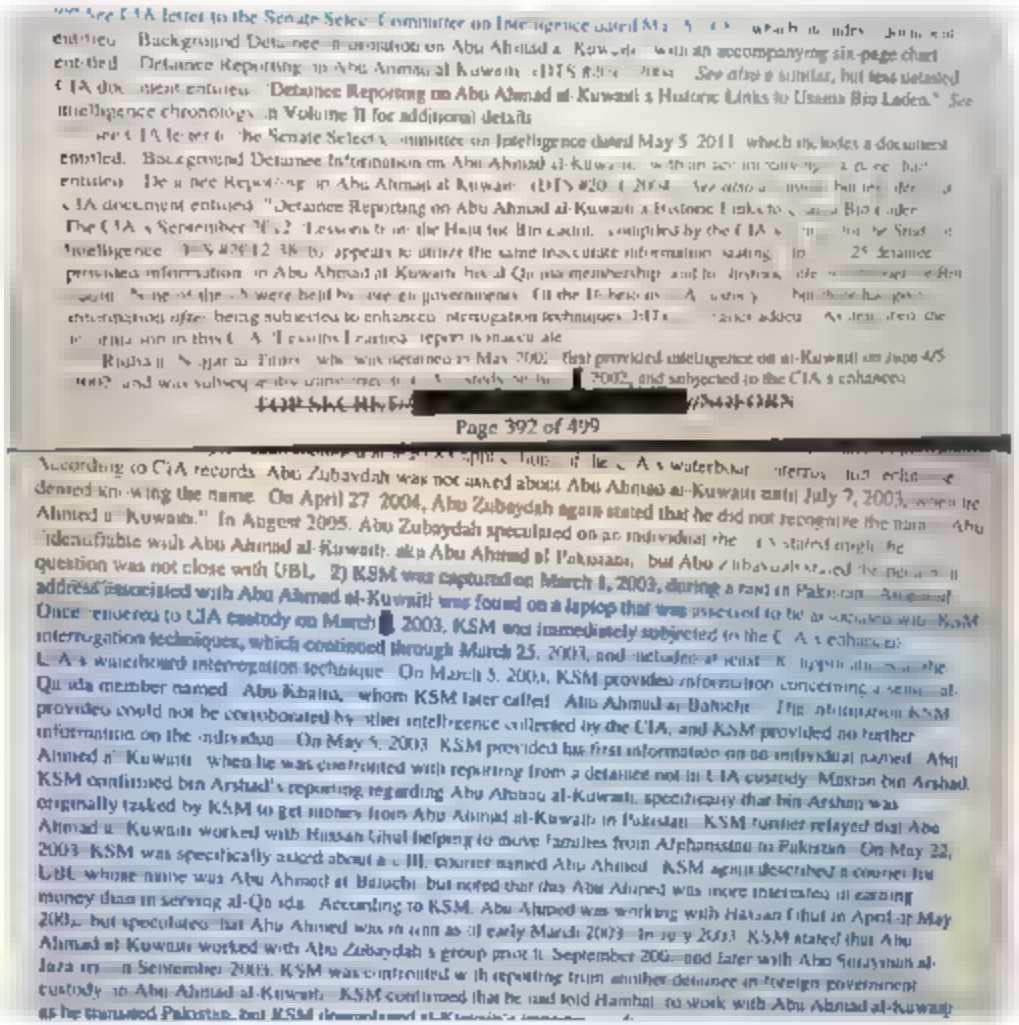
A reminder as former AG Mukasey testifies today: His op-ed in the Wall Street Journal from May 6, 2011, "The Waterboarding Trail to bin Laden," is almost entirely a work of fiction. wsj.com/articles/SB100 …



See CIA letter to the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence dated May 5, 2011, which includes a document entitled, Background Detainee Information on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti, with an accompanying six-page chart entitled Detainee Reporting on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti (DTS #[redacted]). See also a similar, but less detailed CIA document entitled "Detainee Reporting on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti's Historic Links to Usama Bin Laden." See intelligence chronology in Volume II for additional details.

See CIA letter to the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence dated May 5, 2011, which includes a document entitled, Background Detainee Information on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti, with an accompanying six-page chart entitled Detainee Reporting on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti (DTS #[redacted]). See also a similar, but less detailed CIA document entitled "Detainee Reporting on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti's Historic Links to Usama Bin Laden." The CIA's September 2012 "Lessons from the Hunt for Bin Ladin," compiled by the CIA's [redacted] Intelligence [redacted] appears to utilize the same inaccurate information stating, in [redacted], provided information on Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti, head Qa'ida membership and [redacted] were held by foreign governments. On the basis of [redacted] interrogation[redacted] after being subjected to enhanced interrogation techniques. [redacted] added. As detailed in the [redacted] and in this CIA Committee Study report, [redacted]

According to CIA records, Abu Zubaydah was not asked about Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti until July 7, 2003, when he denied knowing the name. On April 27, 2004, Abu Zubaydah again stated that he did not recognize the name "Abu Ahmed al-Kuwaiti." In August 2005, Abu Zubaydah speculated on an individual the CIA suspected might be identifiable with Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti, aka Abu Ahmad al-Pakistani, but Abu Zubaydah stated he [redacted] question was not close with UBL. 2) KSM was captured on March 1, 2003, during a raid in Pakistan. Al-Kuwaiti address associated with Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti was found on a laptop that was suspected to be associated with KSM. Once [redacted] to CIA custody on March [redacted], 2003, KSM was immediately subjected to the CIA's enhanced interrogation techniques, which continued through March 25, 2003, and included [redacted] the CIA's waterboard interrogation technique. On March 5, 2003, KSM provided information concerning a certain al-Qa'ida member named Abu Khaira, whom KSM later called Abu Ahmad al-Baluchi. The information KSM provided could not be corroborated by other intelligence collected by the CIA, and KSM provided no further information on the individual. On May 5, 2003, KSM provided his first information on an individual named Abu Ahmed al-Kuwaiti. When he was confronted with reporting from a detainee not in CIA custody, Mustafa bin Arshad, KSM confirmed bin Arshad's reporting regarding Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti, specifically that bin Arshad was originally tasked by KSM to get money from Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti in Pakistan. KSM further relayed that Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti worked with Hassan Ghul helping to move families from Afghanistan to Pakistan. On May 22, 2003, KSM was specifically asked about a UBL courier named Abu Ahmed. KSM again described a courier for UBL whose name was Abu Ahmad al-Baluchi, but noted that this Abu Ahmed was more interested in earning money than in serving al-Qa'ida. According to KSM, Abu Ahmed was working with Hassan Ghul in April or May 2003, but speculated that Abu Ahmed was in Iran as of early March 2003. In July 2003, KSM stated that Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti worked with Abu Zubaydah's group prior to September 2001, and later with Abu Sufiyan al-Jaza'iri in Iran. In September 2003, KSM was confronted with reporting from another detainee in foreign government custody, to Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti. KSM confirmed that he had told Hambali to work with Abu Ahmad al-Kuwaiti as he transited Pakistan, but KSM downplayed al-Kuwaiti's importance.

Thank you, @karaswisher. You make a compelling case for #StopHateForProfit and for rethinking our relationship with FB and Google. Like chemical companies before Clean Air Act, internet platforms dump toxic waste into society without paying for damage they create. This must stop.

YouTube video playback is not an issue of ndexes catch ng up. That has to do with Save Page Now playback... and, in genera terms, only app es to very recent (hours/days) URLs

YouTube video playback is related to a multi-month re ndex ng process that s completed

When @WUSA9's Verify Team was asked if @AOC had really deleted a controversial tweet, their fact checkers used @internetarchive's Wayback Machine & @propublica's Politwhoops to see if it was fake.

Trump just commuted Roger Stone's sentence.

Stone lied and intimidated witnesses to hide Trump's exploitation of the Russian hack of his opponent's campaign.

With Trump there are now two systems of justice in America:

One for Trump's criminal friends and one for everyone else.

BREAKING: Trump is covering up the fact his own task force says 18 states need to shut down completely right now. This is fraud and negligence that will kill innocent people. Trump should be arrested and spend the rest of his life in prison. I am not joking.

In Olden Days, people who worked for an employer got a pension. The pension would pay $X/month (a percentage of your salary), maybe indexed to inflation. That was a pension you could depend on, surety you could use to plan your old age.

Our society is relying on technology and electronic resources in unprecedented ways. Should the lawsuit against @internetarchive succeed, it will jeopardize critical access to books and online learning tools for millions of students and people with disabilities.

Cory Doctorow #BLM ✓ @doctorow
The @internetarchive is a library, and, like any library, it is allowed to scan the books in its collection and circulate them to its patrons (under precedent set in the Hath. Trust case)...

Wrong! We have more cases because we have tested far more than any other country, 60,000,000. If we tested less, there would be less cases. How did Italy, France & Spain do? Now Europe sadly has flare ups. Most of our governors worked hard & smart. We will come back STRONG

Just curious... if we did less testing would we have less people in ICU units? Would we have less fatalities?

We need a surge in testing... 120 million/month, along with more rigorous distancing & use of masks, to get a handle on the trajectory of suffering & death of COVID-19

Just a point of information, Mr. President: Requiring insurance companies to cover pre-existing conditions is already the law, it's called the Affordable Care Act—or Obamacare. And, by the way, your administration is currently arguing in the Supreme Court to strike down that law.

The White House @WhiteHouse

President @realDonaldTrump is pursuing a major executive order requiring health insurance companies to cover all pre-existing conditions.

And let's be even clearer, the Russians are attacking our election right now in a comprehensive and systematic way; the Chinese are on the sidelines hoping for a certain result. Saying "both sides" are interfering in our election is a false and dangerous equivalence.

I want to comment briefly on why I find this particular website so infuriating and why I am confident in calling it disinformation. Dr Fauci and many other health officials have stressed the importance of randomized controlled trials as the gold standard

Let's be crystal clear what happened here.

The House passed a bill in May to extend UI, fund states/schools, stop evictions.

Senate Republicans refused to negotiate. They recessed the Senate for half of July.

Now, McConnell is boycotting the last minute talks.

Unreal.

the missing page elements are absolutely not my concern, I understand the nature of this, it's the wayback machine's UI which is still malfunctioning and providing the wrong URLs for captures.

Anyone have a software to recommend that will archive websites (not just individual webpages) that are the focus of systematic research? I was going to use WARCreate and WAIL, but I think it will be too labor intensive. Any suggestions?

Why did they pull the commonly used term "COVID-19" off of the page completely?

Because the GOP wants to call SARS-CoV2 a racist name AND use the fact that the CDC changes recommendationsnto stoke distrust, and the top people at the CDC can be fired by the sitting president, which all needs fixed ASAP! There is no room for politics in public health & safety

I understand that the Commission for Presidential Debates views fact-checking the candidates as beyond its scope.

But the Commission's continued efforts to cast fact-checking as somehow "taking sides" is misguided and entirely unnecessary.

view.newsletters.cnn.com/messages/15990...

Debate moderator news is imminent

Via CNN's Keith Allen*.* Commission on Presidential Debates co-chair Frank Fahrenkopf said in an online forum on Tuesday that his group plans to announce debate moderators by the end of this week, with an individual moderator for all four debates. He said moderator "diversity" was a priority.

Regarding real-time fact-checking, Fahrenkopf said there is no plan for it: "There are a lot of fact-checkers, and the minute the debate is over, you can go on any network, you can pick up your paper the next morning, and they're all going to be there. It's not our job to be the fact-checker, it's our job to put on the debate, with the candidates, to be fair, balanced, and not take sides, and let the American people make a decision."

I then head to @internetarchive to see what I can find. Bingo - She's not just a teacher, but also a collector of specimens and a taxidermist. Am now off to add her to Wikidata and get her into @BionomiaTrack as I've at least got her birth date.
archive.org/details/histor ...

Miss Whittington was largely instrumental in collecting rare specimens for the college museum and her Geology students vied with each other in bringing specimens from the animal and mineral kingdoms worthy to be preserved and mass the and occupy space in the room allotted them. Miss Whittington was an experienced taxidermist. On one occasion, Mr Henry Cleveland Wood, poet laureate of Kentucky, met the eminent Daughters College teacher and, said he, "Bring your class to my store—I have a rare specimen to show them a red bat." Eager with excitement, "Miss Mary" and her enthusiastic bunch of students appeared at Mr Wood's book store and soda fountain to be shown a red brick bat. All enjoyed the prank and amid merriment were treated to his good ice cream soda

Don't overlook what Trump thinks is the main problem with the @TheAtlantic story - that we have a free press. "It's a fake story," he said "and it's a disgrace that they're allowed to do it."

If re-elected, you can be sure that he'll do something about that.

Lots of speculation this morning about why Trump spoke to Woodward. Three reasons:
1. He's colossally, pathologically insecure.
2. He's always been desperate to be accepted by the Establishment (see phony Time covers), and he sees Bob as a pillar of it.
3. He's not smart.

The Wayback Machine DOES have a "diff" function. We call it "Changes"

Every ICE concentration camp justifies impeachment @JoeN · 11m
Yeah, that works. I think between not seeing the mouseover text, and assuming that "site map" would be a site map of The Internet Archive and not the URL I'd entered, I missed that.

Every ICE concentration camp justifies impeachment @JoeN · 11m
I've been using a trackball lately to look at this, but I'm under the impression that mouseover text probably doesn't work too well with the touchscreens that some folks use these days

Every ICE concentration camp justifies impeachment @JoeN · 17m
The UI for selecting a date before going to the page showing two versions side by side is also a bit confusing to deal with, but I haven't figured out for sure exactly what the awkwardness is.

Every ICE concentration camp justifies impeachment @JoeN · 15m
It might be that it may have made it look (based on coloration) as if the penultimate capture had already been selected, which is what I wanted, but maybe I needed to actually click on that anyway before clicking on the latest version that I wanted for the other side of the diff?

Every ICE concentration camp justifies impeachment @JoeN · 14m
The exact dates do show up to the left and right of the compare button, which is fine if you're actually looking at that to figure out what is selected, but I was initially looking just at the colors of the squares, which was making less sense

Every ICE concentration camp justifies impeachment @JoeN · 11m
And a page like web.archive.org/web/diff/20200 might be easier to use if it didn't nest scroll bars the way that it does, and maybe it could initially scroll so that the first change is on screen to help people who don't know what to expect to look for

The USPS had a plan to send 5 reusable facemarks to every household in early April. Even had a press release ready.

The White House blocked the plan.

U.S. Postal Service to Deliver Face Coverings to Every American Household

Historic Delivery of 650 Million Face Coverings is in Partnership with the White House Coronavirus Task Force, the Department of Health and Human Services and a Consortium of Textile Manufacturers

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Postal Service today announced it will distribute 650 million reusable cotton face coverings to every residential delivery point in America, beginning in areas experiencing high transmission rates of COVID-19 and to workers providing essential services throughout the nation during the pandemic.

This unprecedented undertaking is being done in partnership with the White House Coronavirus Task Force, the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), and a consortium of textile manufacturers. Project America Strong sub-task force within the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) Unified Command Structure, is complementing the Administration's whole-of-nation response to COVID-19.

Celebrating a journalist being shot is not "a beautiful sight"... it is tyranny. Please vote on, or before, Nov 3rd.

While speaking of the protests against racial injustice that swept the country earlier this year, Trump recalled the moment that police fired on MSNBC anchor Ali Velshi and his crew as they were reporting from Minneapolis.

"I remember this guy Velshi," Trump said. "He got hit in the knee with a canister of tear gas and he went down. He was down. 'My knee, my knee.' Nobody cared, these guys didn't care, they moved him aside."

"And they just walked right through. It was the most beautiful thing," Trump said. "No, because after we take all that crap for weeks and weeks and you finally see men get up there and go right through them, wasn't it really a beautiful sight? It's called law and order."

FOREIGN ACTORS AND CYBERCRIMINALS LIKELY TO SPREAD DISINFORMATION REGARDING 2020 ELECTION RESULTS

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) are issuing this announcement to raise awareness of the potential threat posed by attempts to spread disinformation regarding the results of the 2020 elections. Foreign actors and cybercriminals could create new websites, change existing websites, and create or share corresponding social media content to spread false information in an attempt to discredit the electoral process and undermine confidence in U.S. democratic institutions.

State and local officials typically require several days to weeks to certify elections' final results in order to ensure every legally cast vote is accurately counted. The increased use of mail-in ballots due to COVID-19 protocols could leave officials with incomplete results on election night. Foreign actors and cybercriminals could exploit the time required to certify and announce elections' results by disseminating disinformation that includes reports of voter suppression, cyberattacks targeting election infrastructure, voter or ballot fraud, and other problems intended to convince the public of the elections' illegitimacy.

The FBI and CISA urge the American public to critically evaluate the sources of the information they consume and to seek out reliable and verified information

We can't say we haven't been warned. The opening assumption of this important piece is that Trump will not willingly concede. Under any circumstances. And that he will be aided in this by compliant Republicans. /1

The story suggests that Republicans are planning what might be called a constitutional coup. Trump will dispute the results, allege fraud, and Republican-led legislatures in swing states will assign their own electors regardless of how the state voted./2

Trump will contend he won even though he loses the popular vote and loses the electoral college. The constitution does not say that electors must vote as the majority of voters did. /3

There is no legal precedent or mechanism to end the election and inaugurate a new president if Biden carries the electoral college and Trump refuses to concede. We will have to create one. We need to be ready /4

The original version of a March 2017 article I wrote about the dangers of a Trump presidency contained the line, "Without full disclosure and divestment, we will never know if his actions are for the nation's good or his personal gain." An editor removed it as "too provocative"!

Please please please do not try to interview the Proud Boys. They seek media attention and then use it to spread their toxic message.

      It's overpowering. I've split from family members and friends. Not all are full blown Q, but definitely parts and definitely disinformation. Kudos for the work you do. I've cried too. It's torn our family apart.

      I'm so sorry. One distant family member is drifting inexorably towards Q, and it is really hard. But boundaries are necessary.

      I say this with total sincerity and sensitivity, I don't know how you both do it. This HAS to be one of the strangest, hardest journalism beats going today -- certainly domestically. Probably don't want to get into it publicly, but I hope NBC gives you whatever support you need

Yes, the CDC has updated the page "How COVID-19 Spreads", on Oct 5th, 2020

And, yes, you can use the @internetarchive's @waybackmachine to compare this version with the version updated on Sep. 21, and all previous versions:

web.archive.org/web/diff/20201 ..

How COVID-19 Spreads	How COVID-19 Spreads
A draft version of proposed changes to these recommendations was posted in error to the agency's official website. CDC is currently updating its recommendations regarding airborne transmission of SARS-CoV-2 (the virus that causes COVID-19). Once this process has been completed, the update language will be posted.	COVID-19 is thought to spread mainly through close contact from person-to-person, including between people who are physically near each other (within about 6 feet). People who are infected but do not show symptoms can also spread the virus to others. We are still learning about how the virus spreads and the severity of illness it causes.

Why an image instead of a reference to the pictured tweet?

Chay @chayground · 17 Min
Because the tweet got taken down. But the article is still up

Phil Mocek @pmocek · 14 Min
It would be better to archive a copy at @waybackmachine and reference that, then. Few can rely on the authenticity of an image somebody posts, but @internetarchive are trusted

Just so it's clear. @realDonaldTrump today called for @BarackObama and @JoeBiden to be indicted and prosecuted. Have our standards fallen so far that this kind of antidemocratic authoritarian behavior passes without criticism? Is this now normal?

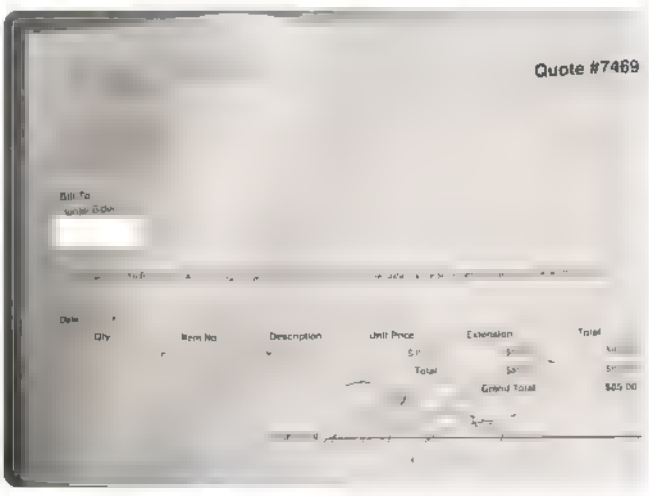
Just to be clear, clearer than the NYP story itself: the claim is that Hunter Biden himself dropped off three MacBooks for data recovery services at the unidentified computer repair shop, on or just before 12 April 2019.

This claim is so specific that it should be verifiable.



14 42 228

Thomas Rid @RidT · 3 Std.

Also, important, even if the computer repair quote and April dropoff can be verified as accurate, that would still not prove that emails leaked this morning or in the next days are accurate.

10 38 223

Thomas Rid @RidT · 2 Std.

The NYP published some of the leaked emails as PDFs. The metadata show that the emails were generated from Mail on MacOSX (and likely unmodified after the PDF was generated). Two PDFs were created about six months after the alleged repair shop data recovery, on 29/9 and 10/10.

The Biden Campaign, so far, has denied one specific detail: the meeting described in this email, displayed up-front in the NYP story. Note that this email was the only email displayed as an image file, not a (unmodified) PDF printout from Mail in MacOSX.

To: Hunter Biden <hbiden@rosemontseneca.com>

Dear Hunter, thank you for inviting me to DC and giving an opportunity to meet your father and spent some time together. It's realty an honor and pleasure. As we spoke yesterday evening, would be great to meet today for a quick coffee. What do you think? I could come to you office somewhere around noon or so, before or on my way to airport.
Best,

The metadata for this image show that it was edited and prepared for publication with Photoshop yesterday afternoon.

Using an image is perhaps cleaner than a PDF embed (so this might be an editorial decision). But the formatting inconsistency certainly raises even more suspicion

The point of a news organization is to serve the public. This is the opposite. @NBCNews could literally run this any other day, or any other time. Shameful. (Disclosure: I am a former NBC News exec)

> David Rothkopf ✓ @djrothkopf
> So, @NBCNews is presenting a Trump town hall opposite a Biden town hall? Do I have that right? They are forcing audiences to choose which candidate to watch? Isn't that serving Trump's agenda? Couldn't they have chosen a different time?

Joe Biden - and all of us - SHOULD be furious that media outlets are spreading what is very likely Russian propaganda.

1/ I've seen the intel. The mainstreaming of misinformation is Russia's 2020 goal. Here's what we know, and why we can't take it lying down.

So you're saying, to be clear, that even if someone's coverage of the president's remarks is not only clear about lies/misstatements but says things like "and this is immoral" or "this is bad," the fact that they're in the room makes them "eager for the circus?"

People certainly celebrated when Obama won. People were thrilled when Clinton won. But it wasn't like this.

This feels like a nation that has been liberated. This feels like opening a door on a new era.

The relief is palpable. The hopes are high.

I'm having those rough conversations with friends and loved ones again about how tougher times are returning.

Bad as they were, these last months were the respite.

We never got COVID under control, and now winter is here. Time to batten down the hatches.

Just a reminder: This is no 2000 repeat, where 500 votes separated the candidates and the winner of the state won the presidency. Trump needs to switch three states and he's behind by thousands of votes in each. Any other politician would have conceded by now, with grace.

No, this isn't performance art—it's the authoritarian playbook. Yes, rather incompetent authoritarianism that will highly likely fail, but authoritarian nevertheless.

Trump's refusal to accept the outcome of a free & fair election doesn't really lower the likelihood that Biden will be inaugurated on 1/20 — but continued denial and conspiracy theory raise the likelihood of political violence over the next two months.

Understanding this risk now is crucial. Quietly — or not so quietly — enabling what is effectively a fundraising scam, camouflaged as some form of continued election campaign, could have very serious consequences. Bloody consequences.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 43 Min
What's an archive link? Luckily for internet, @internetarchive has elected to safeguard a lot of what is published on the internet, and thanks to their work and free tools, we can access and even save internet document that would otherwise be lost.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 38 Min
Let's take an example, again, with starwars.com

web.archive.org/web/*/starwars.com, will let you access over 30k "captures", from 1996-12-30 to today, just for the frontpage

You can't imagine how useful this is for us. Literally web archaeology

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 35 Min
On Wookieepedia, we use citation templates, same as Wikipedia. Like them, we use Cite_web, but we also have several dozen specialized Internet citation templates. {{SW}} is for starwars.com, {{LucasArtsCite}} for the defunct LucasArts.com, etc.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 30 Min
Templates are important, as while a "naked" url would be hard to track, templates are more easily traceable, and editable, as we can edit them in bulk thanks to bots. This way, instead of manually add archive links to every link on every page, we can have the bot do it for us.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 22 Min
By the way, why is this REALLY important? Because of "Attribution". All information we feature on the Wook must be sourced and referenced. Referencing a website is more tedious than a book, and if the web content is lost (which happens ALL THE TIME), then attribution is broken.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 22 Min
Back to the 2016 vote to enforce archive links. There was still a major problem, as thousands of pages were still featuring templates without archive. A maintenance category (a page that list page tagged when automated tools detect an error on a page) was created on 2017.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 18 Min
This helped to figure the size of the workload, but it didn't really pushed for a real undertaking of the massive task. As the admin Imperators said "If it's going to be just me adding links to 1 article per day, with no bot work involved, then it's going to be roughly 34 years."

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 15 Min
Jumping to March 2020, there was still 15000 pages with archives missing, some with only one link, some with several dozens, and in the most severe case, around an hundred (movie articles were the worst, still have nightmare about them).

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 11 Min
Since 15000 wasn't scary enough, we noticed that not every internet citation template and social media citation template were not featured by the maintenance category. There was in fact 22 000 articles concerned.

Florian/Luuke @F_Luuke · 5 Min
Feeling a little concerned by this (I didn't study information science for nothing ^^), I organized a team to focus on this task (starwars.fandom.com/wiki/Forum:SH...).

Since two weeks, this attribution problem is finally behind us, even if there's still a few straggler here and there.

This is key. The fact that we have not deeply examined alternative pathways does not indicate that a history where those pathways are central (and things like chemical batteries are, at best, curiosities) couldn't develop.

Only that we do not inhabit that history at present.

I'm of the opinion that we need to engage in a kind of conscious alternate history of the future, I think that's how liberatory anarchism will come about tbh because I think industrial capitalism is one of these things that forces tech to focus in one particular way

ZERO patience for sundown progressivism @beads and · 13 Std.
Hence my recommendation of Always Coming Home. LeGuin approaches it as an ethnography of the future.

Would suggest that the drive to teleological ahistoricism predates industrialization and capitalism by a millenia or two. See Dugald & Nunberg's History of Information Practices

Yes, indeed! I first found them as podcasts. But more recent years are now available in video form. Or, at least, they were last I looked.

My open letter to @JoeBiden from @WIRED. Tech reform is more urgent than it looks, because nothing can get done if platforms continue to amplify extremist disinformation and conspiracy theories.

WIRED @WIRED
Opinion from @Moonalice: The tech industry has been transformed into a poster child for income inequality, toxic masculinity, and white privilege. Their companies and their community should be targets for reform

there is a chrome extension that almost does this, but you have to actively ask it for some version (first or recent). it'd be neat to find some way to automatically look for recent non-404 versions rather than just recent versions

How COVID-19 Spreads

A draft version of proposed changes to these recommendations was posted in error to the agency's official website. CDC is currently updating its recommendations regarding airborne transmission of SARS-CoV-2 (the virus that causes COVID-19). Once this process has been completed, the update language will be posted.

COVID-19 is thought to spread mainly through close contact from person-to-person. Some people without symptoms may be able to spread the virus. We are still learning about how the virus spreads and the severity of illness it causes.

Yes, the CDC has updated the page "How COVID-19 Spreads", on Oct 5th, 2020

And, yes, you can use the @internetarchive's @waybackmachine to compare this version with the version updated on Sep. 21, and all previous versions:

web.archive.org/web/diff/20201 ..

How COVID-19 Spreads

A draft version of proposed changes to these recommendations was posted in error to the agency's official website. CDC is currently updating its recommendations regarding airborne transmission of SARS-CoV-2 (the virus that causes COVID-19). Once this process has been completed, the update language will be posted.

COVID-19 is thought to spread mainly through close contact from person-to-person. Some people without symptoms may be able to spread the virus. We are still learning about how the virus spreads and the severity of illness it causes.

How COVID-19 Spreads

COVID-19 is thought to spread mainly through close contact from person to person, including between people who are physically near each other (within about 6 feet). People who are infected but do not have symptoms can also spread the virus to others. We are still learning about how the virus spreads and the severity of illness it causes.

COVID-19 spreads very easily from person to person

We found a cert issue on some (not all) of the servers related to PURL.

Internal checks had not alerted us about it (and it has been working fine for me :)

Fixing it now

Thank you for alerting us via your Tweet!

What do Milosevic in Serbia (2000) Yanukovich in Ukraine (2004) Lukashenko in Belarus (2020) & Trump (2020) have in common? They're all leaders who tried to #OVERTURN the will of the people as expressed in free & fair elections. So shameful that a U.S. president is on this list.

In the mood for some Christmas music as recorded in days past on 78s?

They try the Internet Archive's Alexa app

Say "Alexa, ask the Internet Archive to play Christmas music"

(You might have to say "Alexa, ask Internet Archive" the first time)

Feedback/questions welcomed!

During the Mueller investigation, Trump's lawyer floated a pardon to Manafort.

Manafort withdrew his cooperation with prosecutors, lied, was convicted, and then Trump praised him for not "ratting."

Trump's pardon now completes the corrupt scheme.

I spend my days and nights worrying about the corrosive effect of disinformation. This thoughtful essay in @statnews suggests a better way to think about the controversy over vaccine hesitancy. Doesn't deny danger of disinfo; puts it in context.

In 1947, New York City vaccinated 5 million people against smallpox in two weeks. How can we be so much worse at this 75 years later?

Read this Wikipedia summary of how they made it happen:

Vaccination campaign [edit]

On April 4, 1947, New York City Mayor William O'Dwyer and Commissioner of Health Israel Weinstein informed the public about the smallpox outbreak and announced plans to vaccinate everybody in the city.[4] At the time, the New York City Health Department had 250,000 individual doses of vaccine and 400,000 doses in bulk. O'Dwyer called an emergency meeting with the heads of the seven American pharmaceutical companies involved in vaccine production and asked them for a commitment to provide 5 million doses of vaccine.[16] The pharmaceutical companies accomplished the task by putting the vaccine into round-the-clock production. Additional vaccine doses were obtained from the Army and Navy.

Vaccination clinics were set up around the city at hospitals, health department clinics, police and fire stations, and schools. Volunteers drawn from the American Red Cross, the City Health Department, off-duty police and firefighters, and the distended, but vital, World War II Air Raid Warden networks (called in as of New York's colonial days, went door-to-door to urge residents to get vaccinated). A radio and print ad campaign called, "Be sure be safe, get vaccinated!" advertised the vaccination clinic locations and emphasized that vaccination was free. Within days, long lines formed outside the clinics. More than 600,000 New Yorkers were vaccinated in the first week.[16][17] The vaccination clinics began closing April 26, with the last closing May 3, 1947.

Joe Biden won the popular vote by more than 4.5 points, more 7 million votes. He also won the electoral college vote.

In an hour-long call, Trump pressured Georgia secretary of state to recalculate the vote in his favor.

I've been talking to a lot of QAnon followers lately—some disillusioned, some dug in—and besides threatening us all, it's literally ruining their lives. The idea that opportunists can casually embrace it for clout or money or political power without consequence is so unfair.

We'd be happy to buy ebooks from publishers, but only a few will sell them to libraries. Instead they only license them, for many times the $$ of a physical book & for limited time/borrows. So in 10 years, libraries won't have that ebook on their shelves.

Ownership of a book is NOT the same as copyright. You can't buy a book and just post it on the internet, that is infringement. But they incite people to do that

You can own a book and let someone borrow it. That's what the Archive and libraries around the world have been doing. They own X copies of the book, then only X people can have it at any one time. Same as libraries have been doing with physical books for centuries.

If you were to lose, and have all the archived books deleted, would you send out a warning in advance so people can download them?

obsidian @flowerfemme · 33 Min
Probably not, so best to just save what you want while you can to be safe

Bunneh @cottondpad · 2 Min
That sounds to me like their lawsuit can have the exact opposite effect they intend. Instead of letting a digital library work as a library, people will actively try to copy the books just in case the lawsuit succeeds. If I were them I would just drop it

Bunneh @cottondpad · 2 Min
Or rather, if I were them and my goal was avoiding piracy instead their goal is just to assert dominance if they could they would make libraries illegal

I have always Clausewitz's "war is a continuation of politics by other means" made war seems too easy, justifiable, rational and even reasonable.

It is not. It is horror. It lacks morality. It is a failure of politics and a tragedy of our humanity.

The fine people at @wikimedia just posted an opening for a F/T job I always dreamed of hiring for—a Research Community Officer "to nurture and expand the network of Wikimedia researchers globally" in coordination with WMF and the volunteer community. 💯

@internetarchive First of all, a big thanks for such a library of resources, it's simply amazing. However, I found that the download speeds are quite low (maximum 2MB/S normally). Are you aware of it? Any chance to improve it?

@WDScholia has a presentation for "subject" .. when you are interested in understanding the literature as we know it for a subject it is really powerful

Charles Matthews @CharlesMatthe12 11h

@WDScholia is a front end, and someone has to be working on the back end So, look upstream also

Gerard Meijssen @GerardMeijssen 11h

Yes and as such @WDScholia is the perfect combination with your tool/the tools/the people who add subjects to items for papers in @Wikidata

Charles Matthews @CharlesMatthe12 10h

There are multiple stakeholders in #Wikidata "The" perfect combination suggests that scientists, who are particularly interested in visualised bibliography, are somehow special. Siobhan is coming from another direction, and there is more to bibliography than reading lists.

Siobhan @Siobhan_Leachman 9h

Yes, I'm interested to see how the work we all do in Wikidata can be reflected & also built on in tools. Currently, the JstorLabs plant project has really got me thinking about the biodiversity knowledge graph & how best to link & structure content in Wikidata

Gerard Meijssen @GerardMeijssen 8h

Did you get what @internetarchive does with its scholar archive org ?? If we could just collaborate for the best mutual results.

Charles Matthews @CharlesMatthe12 7h

So, scholar archive org/about. A search engine. You can use #Lucene. It says you can do text mining: presumably of the school of thought that says text mining of PDFs is a good idea

I didn't know about this, or fatcat wiki, so thanks

Gerard Meijssen @GerardMeijssen 6h

Important is that they will do their text mining to extract the citing papers. When we can collaborate we will be stronger together.

Charles Matthews @CharlesMatthe12 6h

So we were talking about topical information, rather than open citations. While I have heard plenty about text mining to extract topics, perhaps with ML, I'm not clear it has been applied to Wikidata (or should be).

Gerard Meijssen @GerardMeijssen 6h

Eh when you extract the papers that are cited in a paper... that results in open citations. @internetarchive has papers on any and all subjects, including all of @BioDivLibrary thanks to their collaboration

What exceptional inspiration to hear @donie on the QAA podcast. What he said here was so profound and wise, so meaningful to understand the appeal of disinformation and conspiracy thinking, that I transcribed some of it overcast.fm/+OPWoPj_x8/57:...

> Many people who come to Qanon are in a crisis of their own, personal, financial, personal, political in some ways I certainly know when I'm feeling depressed, or anxious, you know, you cast a wide net, you start thinking about existential questions, essentially, that you normally won't think about, and you're willing to embrace very irrational answers, whether that's about yourself, or your life, or your relationships And I feel in some ways that is how we've seen the expansion of Qanon over the past twelve months As a society we are living through an extremely anxious unprecedented time, with lockdowns, and this virus And just as I think we are capable, when feeling that angst, to embrace the irrational about ourselves, we are also capable of doing that when it comes to conspiracy theories And particularly with COVID I saw early on in COVID that people really wanted to believe the idea that COVID was made in a lab by evil geniuses, whether in Wuhan or in China And in some ways having the belief there that somebody, even if they're evil, that that someone is in control, that somebody is in charge of all of this, is easier to understand than that this is a virus that happened in nature, something that we cannot control I do think that then also comes back to Q Q is somebody who is in control, somebody who has all the answers It's someone, particularly if you're a religious person and you're dealing with religious texts that are thousands of years old, if Q is your godlike character, and up until recently was posting several times a week, that's really, really appealing if you're in a state of anxiety, because somebody appears to be in charge

@donie, on QAA, 1:11, https://overcast.fm/+OPWoPj_x8/57:42

Thomas Rid @R dT 10 m

Th s "scope note" is likely to get ost in the press coverage, but is of towering importance the Intell gence Commun ty does not assess impact and success of foreign influence operations, and does not we gh external impact on organic U.S. deve opments and divis ons. So, caution

Scope Note

This Intelligence Community Assessment (ICA), as required by Executive Order (EO) 13848(1)(a), addresses key foreign actors' intentions and efforts to influence or interfere with the 2020 US federal elections or to undermine public confidence in the US election process. It builds on analysis published throughout the election cycle and provided to Executive Branch and Congressional leaders. This ICA does not include an assessment of the impact foreign malign influence and interference activities may have had on the outcome of the 2020 election. The US Intelligence Community is charged with monitoring and assessing the intentions, capabilities, and actions of foreign actors; it does not analyze US political processes or actors, election administration or vote tabulation processes, or public opinion.

Overarching takeaway: Russian intelligence actors and proxies were far more prolific, more aggressive, and more risk-taking in the 2020 election cycle than many assumed, myself included. They were also more covert and more disciplined than in 2016. Expect more.

Congrats on the donation! Quick question to anyone affiliated with @internetarchive: How many petabytes does the Internet Archive actually store?

Unique documents?

@gojomodamdam @brewsterkahle anyone?

The last reference I can find is from 2004: 10 petabytes, vastly out of date

Yeah, the thing is @waybackmachine has issues lately. See this tweet please this behavior repro'd for me too. Even when logged in, I get this screen right after I search for an archived version of a page. Previously, I got it when I wasn't logged in

> Mona-Doll @monaeberhardt
> @internetarchive, when I try to search for an older version of a website, I get this screen instead. It happens both on Firefox and Chrome. What's the matter? Does it happen to others too? cc ..

The behavior you describe is usually the result of a browser not supporting JS.

I am not saying that is the case here but it could be.

Are you still having the issue?

I can see a new archive for your Twitter account was just made.

However it is not yet available for playback... and, as a result, you are seeing an older archive.

Your new archive will be available here:

It might take a day or two to show up.

Tucker Carlson is outrage-mining about masks tonight so I feel like I may as well share this again.
theatlantic.com/ideas/archive/ ...

> Never mind that experiencing a blood clot after receiving the J&J vaccine appears more unlikely than being struck by lightning. "There are reasons to believe those in fact aren't the real numbers," the Fox News host Tucker Carlson speculated hours after the FDA and CDC announcement. His 15-minute segment treated the government's abundance of caution as evidence of nefarious intent. Carlson said:
> > Now [Anthony] Fauci has declared that because the Johnson & Johnson vaccine has injured six people—and if that's true, by the way, would make that vaccine much safer not just than birth-control pills, but safer than many other vaccines we've distributed in the past—because this one vaccine has hurt six people out of 7 million, we need to stop using it immediately. Does that make sense to you? No, it really doesn't. It seems possible there may be more going on here
> The segment was a master class in spreading conspiracy theories under the guise of merely asking questions. On a typical night, Carlson has a TV audience of a few million people. He got an additional boost on Facebook, where his video was the most popular post about the Johnson & Johnson pause. Forty-five thousand people shared it on the leading social media platform—which was already awash in friend-of-a-friend stories about supposed side effects from COVID-19 shots, aspersions against vaccines more generally, and portrayals of pandemic-related public-health measures as affronts to personal liberty.

Those are two very different views/queries from the Wayback Machine. But/and, I can understand why they may be confusing.

The first (calendar view) is ONLY looking for archives of the EXACT URL you have entered.

The second is executing, in effect, a sub-string search function.

Thank you for trying to help, but I was well aware of that. There's only 1 capture for [the front page of @fawfulator], but lots of his media/tweets have been archived since 2017. Wouldn't it be strange for the front page to be ONLY archived once? And that was from me, today!

I understand your question... but, no, I don't think so.

In this case the "front page" is a specific Twitter account.

In general terms individual Tweets are FAR more likely to be archived, not Twitter accounts/profiles.

But/and... glad you archived it!

This is one of the most interesting dissertations I've ever read. As a computer scientist who's used to seeing pages and pages of charts, the humanistic essay in Ch 7 was fascinating - and directly followed from the data analysis presented in the preceding chapters. That was fun!

Abstract

Political polarization appears to be on the rise, as measured by voting behavior, general affect towards opposing partisans and their parties, and contents posted and consumed online. Research over the years has focused on the role of the Web as a driver of polarization, in order to further our understanding of the factors behind online polarization. In the present work, we collect and analyze Web browsing histories of tens of thousands of users alongside careful measurements of the time spent browsing various news sources. We show that online news consumption follows a polarized pattern, where users' visits to news sources aligned with their own political leaning are substantially longer than their visits to other news sources. Next, we show that such preferences hold at the individual as well as the population level, as evidenced by the emergence of clear partisan communities of news domains from aggregated browsing patterns. Finally, we tackle the important question of the role of user choices in polarization. Are users simply following the links proffered by their Web environment, or do they exacerbate partisan polarization by intentionally pursuing like-minded news sources? To answer this question, we compare browsing patterns with the underlying hyperlink structure spanned by the considered news domains, finding strong evidence of polarization in partisan browsing habits beyond that which can be explained by the hyperlink structure of the Web.

1 Introduction

Many people—according to the Pew Research Center, one in three Americans in 2018 (Geiger 2019)—prefer to receive their news online. Market data on digital publishers further indicates that search engines and social media are dominant sources of referrals to online news content, sending over 75% of referral traffic (Parse.ly 2016). Taken together, these numbers suggest that, for many typical news consumers, the news they see is to a large part determined by the online platforms they frequent.

At the same time, recent research (Rozenshtein and Surber appeal of online news organizations. As online news consumption increases and evidence of polarization among the general population accumulates, understanding the mechanisms of partisan information-seeking behaviors and the properties of online news environments grows in importance.

Not only do social media constitute an important entry point for discovering news content, endorsements of news on social media have also been identified as a factor by which people trust news sources, presumably because endorsements represent a vote in favor of the source's credibility (Messing and Westwood 2014). Search engines—another important entry point for discovering news content—are driven by algorithms that exhibit a certain degree of political polarization, and additionally the input queries of individual users themselves are also polarized in terms of their partisan alignment (Kulshrestha et al. 2017). Polarization, thus, is the product of both individual preferences and properties of the content platforms used to seek out exposure to news.

In this paper, we examine the information-seeking behaviors of individual Web users in order to contribute to understanding the relationship between mass polarization and the consumption of news content on the Web. To address this general research question, we analyzed a novel, large-scale dataset consisting of browsing logs collected via an observational field study design.

We found evidence that supports prior research (Flaxman, Goel, and Rao 2016; Bakshy, Messing, and Adamic 2015) indicating the existence of partisan preferences towards online news exposure, whether measured via the visit share in browsing histories or via the amount of time spent actively engaging with partisan news sources. Indeed, our analysis of time spent as opposed to browsing history provides more unequivocal evidence of partisan selectivity in news sources, strongly endorsing the perspective that online news consumers pursue like-minded partisan sources for political information. We find that such polarized preferences also hold

A big challenge of making learning materials that incorporate other online resources is that there is always a chance that tomorrow the resource will be gone and you won't even know about it until someone is kind enough to tell you that you have a dead link.

I have been very lucky in life to have a unique vantage point to the Pentagon Papers—published 50 years ago today—despite the case occurring well before I was born.

Going to share some little known stories about the saga in this thread over the next 13 days.

While in law school, I had the privilege to work for James Goodale, former general counsel to the NYT, as the researcher & editor on his book about the Pentagon Papers. And I have been honored to call @DanielEllsberg a close friend and colleague at @FreedomofPress for many years.

13 is the number of days the Pentagon Papers went from the front page of the @nytimes to the Supreme Court - a ridiculously short amount of time given almost all cases take years and years to reach a decision.

If archival is a goal, the Web isn't suitable. For example, the client server architecture constraint means the archive resource owner bears all access costs for ever (cacheability doesn't solve). I can't see how this would work.

Jon Udell @judell · 19h
The web is also very friendly to proxies. That's a nice way to inject capabilities. Clients and servers could route requests through proxies that tap into an arbitrarily robust service fabric.

My question is still who pays for that fabric?

SB 277 has occasioned widespread interest and controversy – with both proponents and opponents expressing their positions with eloquence and sincerity. After carefully reviewing the materials and arguments that have been presented, I have decided to sign this bill.

The science is clear that vaccines dramatically protect children against a number of infectious and dangerous diseases. While it is true that no medical intervention is without risk, the evidence shows that immunization powerfully benefits and protects the community.

The Legislature, after considerable debate, specifically amended SB 277, to exempt a child from immunizations whenever the child's physician concludes that there are "circumstances, including but not limited to, family medical history, for which the physician does not recommend immunization..."

Thus, SB 277, while requiring that school children be vaccinated, explicitly provides an exemption when a physician believes that circumstances, in the judgement and sound

Regarding masks, I think we can say:

- Wearing any mask is better then not wearing a mask

- Some masks perform better than others

- We are well past the time when we should expect governments to provide N95 (or better) masks to all

Th s is because it was harmful to amplify a fake "debate". There were not 2 s des. An ant vax mom's op n on was not a val d counterpoint to the overwhelming body of research. This was not "censorship". Th s was med a deciding what not to amplify to avo d misleading audiences.

But the vaccines aut sm True Believers realized in 2009 that they could grow the mvmt on social media. Facebook offered the opportunity to create Pages, to go directly to increasingly large aud ences, to target new parents w th ads suggesting they follow AV Pages and join Groups.

Th s dynam c increased significantly in 2015 when CA introduced a bill to ban "personal be lef exempt ons" for schoo shots. The ant vax movement was furious. They grew on Tw tter, YouTube, all over social med a, networking w/the Tea Party & Nation of Islam to expand the r base.

Th s is when the rhetoric of "medical freedom" / "health choice" kicked into h gh gear. It was a de- berate rhetoric sh ft from the same exact pp who'd been tweeting for years ab mercury, toxins, autism, and every health conspiracy theory under the sun.

The problem is that the "health choice" rhetoric that opened the door to new adherents went hand in hand with blatant m sinformation. Demonstrab y falsifiable c a ms. Come for the "freedom", get indoctrinated about the toxins and m crochips.

The mvmt leaders include a arge # of grifters. The "Dis nformation Dozen" isn't new. It's a bus ness for them. They sel books, web nars, supplements, detoxes. Socia media offered an incredible opportun ty to monetize for charismatic movement leaders. The Groups grew.

Facebook eventually decided it was time to crack down in 2019, a year of two major measles outbreaks, one in which ~87 kids d ed. And to their credit, they removed the Groups from the recommendation engine, made the Pages harder to find, and stopped accepting $ for ads.

These were important and critical policy interventions and they did address some of what SG Murthy & Pres. Biden are saying: people ARE getting bad information on social platforms, and for many many years social media recommended people into the groups, amp ified the wild claims.

The dyanmics were h ghly simi ar to how QAnon grew; and, in fact, there was significant overlap between anti vax groups and Q groups as those grew. (I could do a 100+ tweet thread on that mess at some point...recommendation engines were not great)

The underlying issue here is scarcity by design.

That is a choice, and not our only option.

The fact that COVID vaccines, and the processes required to produce them, are not fully open sourced, is an intellectual crime against humanity.

Over the last several years, we've used this access to uncover systemic flaws in the Facebook Ad Library, identify misinformation in political ads including many sowing distrust in our election system, and to study Facebook's apparent amplification of partisan misinformation. 2/4

By suspending our accounts, Facebook has effectively ended all this work. Facebook has also effectively cut off access to more than two dozen other researchers and journalists who get access to Facebook data through our project. 3/4

Hi, I appreciate Wayback Machine very much. It used to work for my website kaerserence.wordpress.com
But Archive is no longer working. It is backing up only the text and hyperlinks, & not the JPGs or GIFs. Any thoughts on how to fix this?

Yes, the CDC has updated the page "How COVID-19 Spreads", on Oct 5th, 2020

And, yes, you can use the @internetarchive's @waybackmachine to compare this version with the version updated on Sep. 21, and all previous versions:

web.archive.org/web/diff/20201 ...

How COVID-19 Spreads

A draft version of proposed changes to these recommendations was posted in error to the agency's official website. CDC is currently updating its recommendations regarding airborne transmission of SARS-CoV-2 (the virus that causes COVID-19). Once this process has been completed, the update language will be posted.

COVID-19 is thought to spread mainly through close contact from person-to-person. Some people without symptoms may be able to spread the virus. We are still learning about how the virus spreads and the severity of illness it causes.

How COVID-19 Spreads

COVID-19 is thought to spread mainly through close contact from person to person, including between people who are physically near each other (within about 6 feet). People who are infected but do not show symptoms can also spread the virus to others.

We are still learning about how the virus spreads and the severity of illness it causes.

Thanks! That'd be great - I've only seen maybe a dozen big issues (like one book listed as a completely different one), but there've been so many times I've wanted to, say, unify author names (John Smith; John D. Smith, Smith, John; Smith, John, 1923-1983; Smith, John 1923-, etc)

Are cats good? An important study

Patrick J. Owen[1] and Severine Lamon[2]

Abstract

Cats have four legs. Cats can purr. However, science does not know if they are good. Therefore we sought to determine if cats are good. This was a consensus opinion study between the two scientists. Sensitivity analyses were not considered. Results demonstrates that cats are good. Limited sample size and use of 'anecdotal' evidence may have been limitations in conclusion, it appears that cats are good. Purr purr purr.

Keywords: cat, good, important, study

1 Introduction

A cat is a four legged creature (Carroll, 900BC). Purring is odd, but most people can just deal with it. Asking too many questions regarding purring is not recommended. No studies have examined if cats are good. Therefore the aim of the current study was to determine if cats inherently good.

2 Methods

This was a consensus opinion study between two scientists (P.J.O. St.). Both were asked if cats were good. If consensus was not achieved, a series of egg-and-spoon races were held each Sunday morning until opinions aligned. Sensitivity analyses are a good idea, but beyond the scope of this scientific endeavor.

3. Results

Collectively, 100% of opinions suggested that cats were good. No egg-and-spoon races were held.

A previous antipetlionographical study by Scallady et al. (2009) attempted to answer a similar question to the current study, yet the authors were only able to conclude that cats were not not good. This double negative was less than helpful and may in part explain why cats do not currently have voting rights in the majority of developed nations.

5. Conclusion

Cats are good. Future studies may benefit from asking cats for their opinion.

Acknowledgements

The authors wish to thank their cats.

What is immoral and unfair is that the world's pharmaceutical companies have not open sourced recipes and production methods to produce vaccines at scale, and that major investment in distributed manufacturing capacity has not been made

The data certainly appears to have been "freely available". Attached is a screen shot that strongly suggests unauthenticated browsing was available

This page from March 2015 suggests that the full SSN was a property of the page

Michael L. Nelson @phonedude_mln 29s

Live web version is down so can't verify unauthenticated browsing was possible

The HTML form used HTTP POST so no responses are archived (thankfully for the teachers involved).

There could be other URIs for this data, but 15 copies from 2015--2021:

web.archive.org/web/*/https://

Michael L. Nelson @phonedude_mln 28s

The culprit here is whoever designed & deployed the system. You never, never, never "encode" (whatever they mean by that) sensitive data in an HTML page, esp. if system allows unauthenticated viewing.

That's freshmen level stuff

This is very helpful. So you did the search like that, IE: [My vote can't be bought but it can be rented] or did you use quotes like ["My vote can't be bought but it can be rented"]. I don't see DDG showing it if you did the first; we have a reference ...

Danny Sullivan @dannysullivan 5h

If you used quotes, I see we have a reference in the results at the top. DDG has many more references. I'm genuinely curious if it was "can't" or "cannot" but can't see to find any of the original reporting quoting him on the web.

Danny Sullivan @dannysullivan 5h

I'll put both versions in for review, so we can understand how we might better improve. Absolutely, if you or anyone have other examples that come up, really appreciate if you want to share

Danny Sullivan @dannysullivan · 13m

Also, I was really intrigued why we couldn't find the original source of that quote. The reason seems to be that he never said that, or at least that way. He seems to have said "I was rented" or "I can be rented" or "It can be rented." If you're interested, come along for fun....

The best direct, contemporary reference to what Breaux said seems to be from The Washington Post, June 27, 1981

"Somebody wondered if that meant Breaux' vote could be 'sold.' No, Breaux responded, 'It can be rented'."

The Washington Post
Democracy Dies in Darkness

"I went with the best deal," said Rep. John B. Breaux (D-La.), one of 29 Democrats who joined the Republican side Thursday on a key procedural vote on the Reagan package. Somebody wondered if that meant Breaux' vote could be "sold." No, Breaux responded, "It can be rented."

A week later the NYT quoted Breaux, but differently from the WP

"Could President Reagan buy his vote in last month's battle over the Federal budget, a colleague asked Representative John Breaux? 'No,' replied the Louisiana Democrat, 'I was rented'."

Could President Reagan buy his vote in last month's battle over the Federal budget, a colleague asked Representative John Breaux? "No," replied the Louisiana Democrat, "I was rented."

Buy or rent, Mr. Breaux does not come cheap. The President apparently promised to drop his opposition to sugar price supports now being fought over in the House. That promise could cost consumers more than a billion dollars a year in higher prices for sugar and corn sweeteners.

How do two major US papers disagree on an exact quote attributed to Breaux? Newsweek from that period sheds some light. The July 6, 1981 edition matches the NYT: "I was rented." Page 21 (I'll return the @internetarchive copy shortly -- nice feature!)

the "considerations and adjustments" was Reagan's agreement to withdraw his opposition to a sugar-price bill dear to the Southern Democrats. "You can be bought," a colleague tauntingly asked one of the beneficiaries, John Breaux of Louisiana. "No," Breaux kidded. "... I was rented."

Hi, folks. Internet Archive has arranged to take this document and manual collection in full. I've also secured some local volunteers who will do the packing and setup for transport to our physical archives.

Thanks to the (many) people who brought this to our attention.

spanning 1970 through 2000. Hard copy documents covering ALL aspects of MCI equipment. . Plus extra. Must be picked up by 11-14-2021 , or it's going to the landfill. Please PM if interested. Located in Corsicana , Texas 75110 Was part of Capehart Communucation Collection

Hi Adam,

Anyone can flag Items and our "Patron Services" team will review them.

One of the flag options is "Hate Speech".

Start by simply clicking the "flag" Icon, at the top-right of every Item page.

Anyone can also email specific concerns to info@archive.org

Fact, this buffoon looks down when she sees me at the Capitol, this whole story is made up. Sad she thinks bigotry gets her clout.

Anti-Muslim bigotry isn't funny & shouldn't be normalized. Congress can't be a place where hateful and dangerous Muslims tropes get no condemnation.

Now here's your food for thought for a dark weekend: "Replacing academic journals" by @brembs and colleagues doi.org/10.5281/zenodo...

Replacing academic journals pm Brembs, Phi ppe Huneman, Felix Schonbrodt, Gustav kakis, Varvara Trachana, Lai Ma, Sara Rodr gu

A major factor underlying several scholarship's most pressing problems is its outdated journal system with its inefficiency, irreproducibility, unaffordability and frequent crises. Any solution needs to not only solve the current problems but also be capable of preventing takeover by corporate actors. To satisfy these requirements, we propose a distributed, decentralized, public good, run by the scholarly community itself, which would organize publishing services and create a market for competing quality control services. Services would be interconnected by open standards under the governance of the scholarly community itself, and would replace the monopolies of current journals with a competitive, functioning and well-regulated market. In this new market, substitutable service providers compete openly and openly with each other on the merits of their products. Flexible pricing mechanisms would allow publishing costs to be covered by various parties, such as authors, their institutions, research funders, governments, endowments, consortia, or reader subscriptions. Regardless of who pays, the costs would be significantly lower than current charges. Quality control would be provided by a thousand-tested incentive system: Referees would be selected publicly from the pool of potential publishers and would be rated publicly on the basis of their performance. Publishers would be selected by a thousand-tested incentive system: Publishers

Happy 93rd birthday to the one and only Noam Chomsky.

One of the privileges of being a broadcaster and podcaster with Al Jazeera, The Intercept, and NBC is that I've been able to interview Noam five times in my career, and twice in person at MIT.

While searching for old Onion content on the Internet Archive's "Wayback Machine" I found this old 224x60 half banner promoting the Palm Pilot compatible version of the Onion I put together in 1999 or so.

Just a small tech note Twitter doesn't display GIFs directly. Twitter converts it into an MP4 for consistent playback across all devices

The GIF itself is very clear and plays back cleanly as a GIF in a web browser. But on Twitter, it has that weird compression jelly-like feel

1 22

Jack Szwergold @JackSzwergold · 6h
Wow. Stunned and humbled that so many people in this thread used AvantGo to sync the Onion mobile site to their Palm Pilots or Handspring Visors.

Truth be told? I though those things were silly. But saw creating a mobile version of the Onion as a good fit for those users. (1/2)

Jack Szwergold @JackSzwergold · 6h
The Onion's content back then was mainly consumed by bored office workers and students killing time

So the assumption was PDA users would enjoy reading Onion content while bored at meetings or on commutes and stuff. Syncs and go!

Happy it reached it's target audience! (2/2)

Today the Supreme Court will hear Carson v. Makin. The plaintiffs seek to force Maine into subsidizing the religious indoctrination of children in the name of "religious liberty." If successful, Mainers will be financing Christian schools like these. slate.com/news-and-polit …

•Bangor Christian School expels all students who identify as gay or transgender or who display any gender-nonconforming behavior, on or off campus. Children who profess to be gay are expelled even if they swear to remain celibate.

•BCS compels all teachers to affirm that they are a "Born Again" Christian and an "active, tithing member of a Bible believing church." It will not hire teachers who are gay, transgender, or gender non-conforming.

•BCS explicitly denounces non-Christian faiths. In social studies class, for example, ninth grade students are taught to "refute the teachings of the Islamic religion with the truth of God's Word." All students are instructed that men serve as the head of the household.

INTRODUCTION

WALTER PLECKER WAS AN ASSHOLE.

In the 1920s, he was registrar of Virginia's Bureau of Vital Statistics, the state government office that controlled birth, death, marriage, and divorce records (http://bkaprt.com/eia/00-01/). As a frothing-at-the-mouth white supremacist, Plecker was terrified of interracial marriage. Its very existence, he insisted, was the result of poor categorization: white people were marrying non-white people only because the government hadn't labeled them "correctly."

Plecker decided that he could use bureaucracy to change this, and he was right: all he had to do was relabel Virginia's racial categories, and racist laws took care of the rest. He reduced the number of racial identity categories to just two, then altered and enforced documentation to reflect his definitions.

This meant that a very small and specific group of people were labeled white, and everyone who fell outside of Plecker's narrow view were not—and their lives changed accordingly. The government saw them differently, identified them differently, treated them differently. They no longer had access to the same public spaces, the same schools, the same services and safety nets afforded to white people. Marriages were invalidated. Children were separated from parents. Virginians lost agency over who they were—all because Walter Plecker changed a label.

Changing a label is a design decision—one calculated, in this case, to disenfranchise specific human beings.

Now, most of us don't have Walter Plecker's job. We are, instead, designers, developers, copywriters, strategists. We work on the web, and we may not think our work carries that same weight.

I'm here to argue that it does. Whatever our role, we are designers of information. Our choices alter the presentation and flow of human knowledge. We control how people find, understand, and use information in every facet of their lives.

We must be very, very careful.

Another Asilomar Conference @Ayjchan? Another two decades of fecklessness?

Asilomar: 20 Years On

In February 1975 a meeting was held at the Asilomar Conference Center, California, led by Paul Berg of Stanford University, whose Committee on Recombinant DNA Molecules of the National Research Council, National Academy of Sciences had earlier published letter in Science 1) that called for an international meeting of involved scientists from all over the world to review scientific progress in the area of recombinant DNA and to further discuss appropriate ways to deal with the potential biohazards of recombinant DNA molecules. In their letter the signatories wrote of concern that had been raised by scientists attending the 1973 Gordon Research Conference on Nucleic Acids, who had requested that the National Academy of Sciences give consideration to these matters (2). The Berg letter called for a voluntary deferment of two types of experiment until guidelines to be followed by investigators could be developed, at the same time that the potential biological and ecological hazards, and the spread of such molecules within human and other populations could be investigated.

The Asilomar Conference duly took place. The chairman of the Recombinant DNA Molecule Program Advisory Committee of the National Institutes of Health, H. DeWitt Stetten, Jr., was to describe the meeting as "2-1/2 days of unalloyed excitement. The mood was missionary, relatively little data were presented, and most of the participants were definitely set on fire by the procedure. Clearly, the 15 invited representatives of the press were also excited by what they heard, and the matter was abundantly reported in newspapers and in popular magazines"(3). Not everyone present agreed with that account of that I could only wish that mine had not been guilty of it." The controversy was described as "probably the largest ethical problem that science has ever had to face." The proposal to build a containment facility at Harvard caused Alfred E. Vellucci, mayor of the City of Cambridge, to write to the President of the U. S. National Academy of Sciences, drawing attention to press reports of

> ". . . one had to live through those times to experience, and try to understand, the alarm that the potential dangers of the new technology roused in the breasts of practicing scientists and laypersons alike."

sightings in New England of hairy, orange-eyed 9-foot creatures, asking that the Academy check "whether or not these strange creatures are in any way connected to recombinant DNA experiments taking place in the New England area."

The younger generation of molecular biologists will surely have heard of the controversy, for much has been written about it, but one had to live through those times to experience, and try to understand, the alarm that the potential dangers of the new technology roused in the breasts of practicing scientists and laypersons alike.

When in 1979, the dust was beginning to settle, and research with recombinant DNA molecules was going ahead under approved guidelines, Donald S. Fredrickson, then the Director of the NIH, wrote a history of the guidelines (4), and concluded with the following statement:

"It is possible that the recombinant help us through the turbulence that is sure to come."

Twenty years after the Asilomar Conference one can look back and speculate where biological science might now be had the opponents of the use of the technology prevailed. That was probably never even a remotely likely scenario, but the episode should serve as a constant reminder for vigilance in upholding freedom of inquiry, not, of course, unbridled, unfettered inquiry, but with all due safeguards and respect for accepted scientific and ethical standards. Those who would oppose freedom in the conduct of science are always with us, and we should ever be on our guard in defending the right to probe the unknown, using as our precepts the statement of the International Council of Scientific Unions on freedom and the conduct of science, namely freedom to pursue science and to publish the results, freedom to communicate among scientists and to disseminate scientific information, and freedom of movement of scientific materials.

Did you know the Sperm Whale isn't actually the deepest diving mammal?

That record actually goes to the Cuvier's beaked whale, which can dive to nearly 10,000 feets or 3,000 metres

There is a lot that went wrong with face masks from day 1– we went from don't wear them, to wear them, to double mask, to no mask, & now possibly CDC coming around to high filtration masks.

The biggest mistake CDC Director can make here is to offer huge assumptions for the American public in terms of what they can and cannot do. Just lay out the facts, recommend better masks, make them available like Salt Lake City is doing. It's one part of the toolkit. Fix it.

Six years ago, the Obama administration's Science advisor/OSTP director, John Holdren, admitted that the US talked 'all the time' with China about gain of function research. I wonder what exactly they talked about?
Let's start a Holdren Thread 🧵... scientificamerican.com/article/obama-...

Science is global today. How do you think that complicates matters? Can the regulators keep up?
I'm going to China this week for a strategic and economic dialogue and for a US-China dialogue on innovation policy. I'll be talking with my Chinese counterpart, Wan Gang, the minister of science and technology, about some of these very problems and what we are doing about them

We have a lot of cooperation with China on biomedical issues. We talk to them all of the time about gain-of-function research and about gene-editing issues. And in fact, when the current round of interest in gene editing emerged with the rise of the CRISPR technology, the [US] National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine convened leading scientists from all over the world in a format very much like Asilomar [a landmark conference in 1975 that set rules for research on recombinant DNA], but strongly international. The top Chinese people

The next generation of the web is coming, whether we want it or not, whether we call it #Web3 or the #Metaverse or the #DecentralizedWeb.

Good on @InternetArchive for stepping up to cut through the hype and discuss its implications, particularly for libraries.

The ending music in @Showtime "Billions" Season 6, Episode 1 of "Billions" sounds like a rap version of Buffalo Springfield's "What's That Sound?".

Does anyone have a reference to that version of the song? Love it.

be any sort of meaningful freedom of speech when violence is accepted as a response to speech, as it is on Gab?

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 2h

If somebody said that Dad was going to take me and my brothers onto a longship and have us sack Milwaukee, I'd laugh at that, because almost nobody would take that seriously. It would have no impact on my life

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 2h

But all I need is one psychopath with one bullet, and life won't be going on as it has before and Gab is happy to be a gathering place for a swarm of those That, I can't laugh off

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 1h

Your position, then, boils down to "you're free to speak on Gab as long as you don't mind being shot for what you have to say," to which I'd respond "how could I NOT have that freedom?" Freedom, defined that broadly means nothing.

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 1h

The takeaway I'm getting from what you've said is that nobody in his right mind should ever even think of organizing any sort of real world activity (eg. protests) on Gab. If so, then what purpose does political speech on your site serve?

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 1h

What would be the point of talking about what should be done, if we never find ourselves in a position to do it, because you and your company have created an environment so unsafe that the remaining mentally stable people on your site dare not gather?

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 1h

After the Tree of Life incident, a slaughter that was announced in advance on Gab, there were questions asked about your site and your company I think I can see, now, how such a thing could happen, because I can see how you react to threats by going into denial

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 1h

Presented with a clear and present danger, your response isn't to take responsible action, but to try to derail and deflect, and take attention away from that danger until it's too late to act.

Streetervillian @chicagoland sh 1h

That's not free speech, Torba That's anarchy

Inevitable? I sure hope not. The world definitely needs a real alternative to the woke dictatorship and its censorship, but this revival of Nazism that you've presided over isn't it.

In the last 24 hrs the former president: (1) floated pardons for 1/6 defendants, (2) encouraged civil unrest if he's indicted in GA/NY, (3) once again confirmed he pressured Pence to overturn a lawful election.

He's radicalizing his base to be his personal Brown Shirts.

Dear Trump supporters,
He didn't pardon a single one of you who stormed the capitol for him and are now looking at very long prison sentences, but he did pardon Steve Bannon, the guy who ripped all of you off.

I had no idea Richard Pryor was also a singer and used to open for Bob Dylan and Nina Simone. This is him in 1966 singing the blues. What an incredible voice .. and his awkward bow at the end makes you want to give him a big hug ❤️

The US has a long history of banning books.
James Joyce's classic "Ulysses" was banned for a decade+ as obscene.
@MookseGripes, an avid collector, is working w/ @InternetArchive to digitize every version known to exist. Today he brought in a 1st edition for scanning.

@realDonaldTrump You are a liar. The two women who spoke to Jeff Flake were exercising their right, and indeed their responsibility as citizens. They are not "paid professionals". I honor, respect and support them and all others who speak truth to those in power.

All our relationships with the big knowledge-work corps are like this. It seems like it would be cool if there were a give and take between fans making works building on corporate IP and corps reinterpreting public domain ideas. But it's only take. The public domain only shrinks.

mcc @mcclure111 2 Dec 2019

Think about how Twitter got so many ideas from community inventions (like the @) and third-party Twitter apps (en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tweetie). And then they changed their developer terms to eliminate all the third party Twitter apps, Favstar etc

Think about

That's not the intent. I came out of academia, I (and others at Twitter) talk to researchers often, and we've learned a lot from the thoughtful work on disinfo and manipulation. But there are real, practical limits here that aren't generally acknowledged.

> Samuel Woolley @samuelwoolley

In my experience, the most useful signals we as a company have to identify malicious behavior are all things we can't share publicly, like emails, phone numbers, IPs, and other private indicators.

We're always looking for more opportunities to collaborate with researchers here, and are pushing our own boundaries to make more data available, like our recent disclosure of data on known info ops.

Very impressed that you are archiving twitter. Even more impressed you are archiving future posts.

Wayback machine lets you examine a dump of a page, then look at previous dumps. In this case, we are on today in 2019 and the navigation lets you go back to 2018 and apparenty forward to 2020!

The GOP heads of the House Judiciary and Oversight committees outlined the potential case against Clinton in a joint letter this week to Washington's top federal prosecutor

In their six-page letter, Reps. Bob Goodlatte (Va.) and Jason Chaffetz (Utah) pointed to four instances during which the former secretary of State "appear[ed] to implicate" two criminal laws barring perjury and false statements netarchive .s there something wrong with the @waybackmachine? Around two weeks ago, the archiving feature started producing errors in Google Chrome and now I can't even access it in either that browser or Waterfox but have to use Opera to get it to work at all :(

If I paste a URL into either the Wayback Machine in Firefox 56.2.7.1 or use the "Save Page Now" feature, the site doesn't respond

If I do the same @Google Chrome 71.0.3578.98, I get this error message in the attached screenshot.

No worries. We have, and will, evolve the Wayback Machine as technical and other factors change. In many ways the Wayback Machine is more of a "process" than a "thing". Adaptation is key. And, ongoing real-world use is integral to that process.

Jeff Bezos @jeffBezos 15 Jun 2017

Request for ideas.

This tweet is a request for ideas. I'm thinking about a philanthropy strategy that's the opposite of how I mostly spend my time - working on the long term. For philanthropy I find I'm drawn to the other end of the spectrum the right now. As one example, I'm very inspired and moved by the work done at Mary's Place here in Seattle. Like long term - it's a huge lever. Blue Origin, Amazon, Washington Post - all of these are contributing to society and civilization in their own ways. But I'm thinking I want much of my philanthropic activity to be helping people in the here and now - short term - at the intersection of urgent need and lasting impact. If you have ideas, just reply to this tweet with the idea (and if you think this approach is wrong, would love to hear that too)

Thanks!
Jeff

Thank you @robertloerzel In "normal" times this would be the biggest story for days or weeks... & it be more than enough evidence of wrongdoing for the President to resign or be force out of office. But these are not normal times & we all must work harder to speak truth to power.

@VICE should be deplatformed if you cannot even document what they say remember when Vice was cool. This just an insult to everyone Call ng s te l ke Archive sites right wing is a height of misrepresentation. It actual y affirms @internetarchive Importance

VICE

For those wondering why some of the pages on VICE.com might not work we have disabled all archiving services of all of our webpages, this includes archive is, waybackmachine.org, megalodon.jp, and other right-wing archiving websites. This will have an effect on some of the articles. We are taking a stand against Racism, Bigotry and Islamophobia alongside SVD.se and NPR.org and are preventing all archiving services which are being used by right-wing activists to discredit us and other reputable news outlets on popular forums and sub-reddits by having archived articles, blog posts and opinion pieces by respected industry experts and journalists, without giving us a chance to update, remove or edit them before discrediting us and damaging our reputation as the leading millennial news source. Our articles will continue to inform and spread awareness on Xenophobia, Racism, Sexism and Islamophobia promoted by the current U.S. administration and we will not accept the violence promoted by Mr Trump and his supporters on ethical journalism.

One idea: Is it possible to make Wayback Machine links ignore (or even parse) UTM codes? UTM codes often get added to newsletter links, including my own, but they break the Wayback redirects. I often get around this by using Bitly links, but there might be another way

If you goto this URL https://www.nps.gov/subjects/climatechange/upload/BHO-climate-action-plan-final.pdf... with a (Safari, Firefox or Chrome) browser without the "Wayback Machine" extension you will get an error message. With the extension you will see the "Climate Friendly" action plan for the Big Hole National Battlefield national park.

Can you please be specific? We do not retro-nuke archived content by use of robots.txt.

Fried Phish. @friedphishes · 26 Jun 2019

've seen a number of sites in the past alter their robots.txt files and do something that causes archive.org to delete prior records. Do they contact the archive to do this? Its usually been in bad faith to cover up stuff Notably spyware/spouseware vendors. ,

Amaz ng stuff here. This is a declassified (originally "Secret") report from Camp Detrick on Operation BIG BUZZ, a test run to weaponize mosquitoes for biological warfare

scribd.com/document/12102

SUMMARY (S)

A field test was conducted in Georgia to demonstrate whether mosquitoes could be mass-produced and stored, loaded into munitions and disseminated from aircraft, and whether they would survive the airdrop and take blood meals from humans.

More than one million uninfected yellow-fever mosquitoes, Aedes aegypti, were produced and stored nearly two weeks. About one third of a million of these mosquitoes were concentrated in E14 munitions containing "aircomb waffles" and "loop tubes" and in 2½-ft rocket-shaped ground-release munitions, and dropped from aircraft without marked mortality. The remaining mosquitoes were used in munition loading and storage tests. Mosquitoes were airplane-released from munitions opening at altitudes from three hundred feet to ground level. They were dispersed by wind and their own flight and were collected as much as two thousand feet downwind from the target release site. The female mosquitoes were active in seeking blood meals and were attracted to and bit humans and guinea pigs.

This field test was a qualitative preliminary test to show feasibility of airplane delivery of mosquitoes for dissemination of BW agents. Since this test was successful, additional tests are planned using larger numbers of mosquitoes on adequate targets to permit quantitative evaluation of dispersal and survival, and to show feasibility of delivery of mosquitoes from a high-altitude jet bomber.

Regarding phone calls between Donald Trump and various heads of state. From time to time we get incomplete and summarized (not "word for word") text transcriptions of the calls. Can anyone tell me if audio of the calls is recorded? How might we ever actually listen to the calls?

Thanks, Mark! What's the root cause—not enough funding for enough indexing servers? A sudden influx? I always donate a little; your work is critically important.

Mark Graham @MarkGraham · 30 Jan 2020
More $/servers would help. And while there WAS a sudden influx of some very large web-based objects, that pushed some things over the edge this week, we have been, in general terms, increasing our throughput faster than we have been adding capacity. Thank you for your support!

Think about how Twitter got so many ideas from community inventions (like the @) and third-party Twitter apps (en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tweetie). And then they changed their developer terms to eliminate all the third party Twitter apps, Favstar etc

Think about

They will take everything, someday, and once they've taken a thing we will never get it back.

Or maybe I'm just bitter

The worst part, by the way? I lost the original "Quantum Mario" video in an HD crash. The Youtube version was my only copy. I can't even watch it anymore

The Wayback Machine has the video archived! You can still watch it there!

Wow, it's crazy that that works. It looks like the Wayback Machine's injecting its own jwplayer in place of the Flash element, if I'm digging around correctly

Is there a site to report issues with Wayback Machine?

On some archived YouTube channels, clicking a video will open a playlist specific URL, making it seem like the video hasn't been archived

Mostly I annoy @MarkGraham but also bear in mind that YouTube is an active bad actor who work very hard to make their system unarchiveable, and any amount of it working is a miracle filed an issue report on GitHub, hopefully on the correct project

Do you have a system for de-junkifying different variants of YouTube URLs? I'd be interested in contributing to that project.

Does the WayBack machine support anything like this already? And if so, is there a place we can suggest/contribute rewriting rules?

Keith Snyder @noteon · 14 Feb 2018
If you really want to wow the crowd, have the results include a field that lets me enter the client's new URLs for each broken one, click a button, and be done with the whole thing. #eprdctn

Keith Snyder @noteon · 14 Feb 2018
And for that matter, also allow me to remove the href entirely, leaving the link text intact. #eprdctn

Perma cc @permacc · 14 Feb 2018
Removing the href from the link would make the link less accessible and do nothing to preserve the content of said link. We would love if you considered archiving the links and using services like @internetarchive, @webrecorder_io, @permacc :-) #eprdctn

Keith Snyder @noteon · 14 Feb 2018
Also—is it a smart bet that those services and their 2018 URLs will still be around in five, ten, or fifty years? These are books, after all. They're intended to last longer than web pages. #eprdctn

Webrecorder @webrecorder_io · 14 Feb 2018
Webrecorder is free to use, and you can download all content to view locally with our desktop app github.com/webrecorder/we... Also works well with perma.cc and any other web archive data (WARC format). If a service no longer up, you can still have a copy of the archive

Keith Snyder @noteon · 14 Feb 2018
The context of the conversation is ebooks and link rot. There's no archiving or downloading anything. Links in ebooks go bad, Amazon and Apple complain, users can't get where they wanted to click to, and there's no apparent solution

Replying to 9000 @halovast @internetarchive

The Internet Archive has many 10s of petabytes of spinning disks in servers we operate, and pay for. Other nodes in the network would contribute their storage and cover costs.

Hey there! Almost a year later, I was googling for some answer to this same problem I'm having while researching something and saving found pages (most of which had never been archived and are in danger of disappearing) but I'm actually logged in What's the fix here?

Und General Tod Wolters, der militärische Oberbefehlshaber der NATO, sagt unter Eid aus, er sei "fan of a flexible first use policy". Das bezieht sich auf den Einsatz von Atomwaffen.

Mark Graham @MarkGraham
When asked about his views about adopting a no first use (nuclear weapon) policy, General Tod D Wolters, USAF responded "Senator I'm a fan of flexib e first use pol cy".

Kremlin crooner Oleg Gazmanov at the pro-war rally Putin went to yesterday singing "Ukraine and Crimea, Belarus and Moldova, that is my country." This clip was sent to me by an acquaintance in Chișinău where it's being shared with increasing alarm.

It's easy to get distracted by the grotesqueness of Russia's crass propaganda about Ukraine, but we shouldn't let that distract us from the pursuit of accountability for Russian war crimes in Ukraine.

Bellingcat founder: Don't let Putin's disinformation distract from his war crimes

We've never seen a situation where there's so much evidence of war crimes and so much engagement with the accountability community in that evidence. You just have to look at our civilian harm map to get a sense of that

It's important to respond to disinformation and propaganda, but we shouldn't allow that to distract us from the opportunities for accountability that present themselves. We know Russian authorities lie constantly and shamelessly, they've done it for years, that's not news

2 · 22 · 138

Eliot Higgins @EliotHiggins · 1h
Accountability should be the focus of everyone, and the obsession around disinformation can unfortunately act as a distraction from this, seeing war crimes in terms of the lies that are told rather than the truths that can be found

2 · 33 · 127

Eliot Higgins @EliotHiggins · 1h
I've had a lot of people asking to speak to Bellingcat about Russian disinformation over the last few weeks, but it's time we move the conversation on from that & focus on accountability & ensuring the crimes of today aren't forgotten for the political conveniences of tomorrow

When we say Kyiv is winning the information war, far too often we only mean information spaces we inhabit.

Pulling apart the most obvious RU info op to date (as we did using semantic modelling), very clear it is targeting BRICS, Africa, Asia. Not the West really at all.

Yes, some of this is archived but it's not systematic so many of the snapshots don't seem to go that deep. More importantly it's not easy to search the snapshots in an active work ng way. Restaurant focused discuss on has reduced ut l ty over time, but not the home cooking forum

James Vasile @ jamesvas e Mar 9
Ah, that's too bad. I wonder why the @internetarch ve snapshots are sha low have never been a chowhounder, but I recall you referring me to that site pretty much every time we talked about food. I hope this resource gets properly preserved!

karen sandler @o0karen0o Mar 9
basically learned to cook from @CHOW! I doubt I would have ever have made a sourdough starter or saved my vegetable clippings in the freezer for stock or found most of my favorite recipes without it. I owe trying a pressure cooker to you!

karen sandler @o0karen0o Mar 9
The best part about it was just being able to search for random ingredients that I had around & finding in-depth conversations about different uses and techniques from so ely a home cooking perspective. Some of the threads I've recently used are >10yo & completely relevant today

Agreed! @MarkGraham & Wayback saved as many snapshots as possible, but we are sti l trying to home the raw #chowhound data. Nibb es from a couple academ c libraries so far. Other ideas for a searchable repos tory home?

> m s wine @ pantrycook ng
> Many of us are st l trying to convince @RedVentures & @Healthl ne execs to donate #Chowhound data archive to a nonprofit where the publ c can stil search & access. @Jesse Hirsch, please add your voice that this is history worthy preserving! twitter.com/jesse Hirsch/s...

Someone on Quora asked "Why do some British people not like Donald Trump?" Nate White, an articulate and witty writer from England wrote the following response:
A few things spring to mind. 1/15

Trump lacks certain qualities which the British traditionally esteem
For instance, he has no class, no charm, no coolness, no credibility, no compassion, no wit, no warmth, no wisdom, no subtlety, no sensitivity, no self awareness, no humility, no honor and no grace - 2/15

-all qualities, funnily enough, with which his predecessor Mr Obama was generously blessed
So for us, the stark contrast does rather throw Trump's limitations into embarrassingly sharp relief.
Plus, we like a laugh. And while Trump may be laughable, he has never once said 3/15 anything wry, witty or even faintly amusing - not once, ever

I don't say that rhetorically, I mean it quite literally: not once, not ever. And that fact is particularly disturbing to the British sensibility - for us, to lack humour is almost inhuman 4/15
61 1,279 15.3K

James Tate @JamesTate121 · Apr 13
But with Trump, it's a fact. He doesn't even seem to understand what a joke is - his idea of a joke is a crass comment, an illiterate insult, a casual act of cruelty
Trump is a troll. And like all trolls, he is never funny and he never laughs, he only crows or jeers.

And scarily, he doesn't just talk in crude, witless insults - he actually thinks in them. His mind is a simple bot-like algorithm of petty prejudices and knee-jerk nastiness.
There is never any under-layer of irony, complexity, nuance or depth. It's all surface. 6/15

Some Americans might see this as refreshingly upfront.
Well, we don't. We see it as having no inner world, no soul
And in Britain we traditionally side with David, not Goliath. All our heroes are plucky underdogs. Robin Hood, Dick Whittington, Oliver Twist. 7/15
80 1,151 13.7K

James Tate @JamesTate121 · Apr 13
Trump is neither plucky, nor an underdog. He is the exact opposite of that.
He's not even a spoiled rich-boy, or a greedy fat-cat.
He's more a fat white slug. A Jabba the Hutt of privilege
And worse, he is that most unforgivable of all things to the British: a bully. 8/15

12 1,028 11.6K

James Tate @JamesTate121 · Apr 13
'Yeah, he seems like my kind of guy' is a matter of some confusion and no little distress to British people, given that: Americans are supposed to be nicer than us, and mostly are. You don't need a particularly keen eye for detail to spot a few flaws in the man. 11/15
46 981 11.8K

James Tate @JamesTate121 · Apr 13
This last point is what especially confuses and dismays British people, and many other people too; his faults seem pretty bloody hard to miss.
After all, it's impossible to read a single tweet, or hear him speak a sentence or two, without staring deep into the abyss. 12/15
23 1,034 12.2K

James Tate @JamesTate121 · Apr 13
He turns being artless into an art form, he is a Picasso of pettiness; a Shakespeare of shit. His faults are fractal: even his flaws have flaws, and so on ad infinitum
God knows there have always been stupid people in the world, and plenty of nasty people too. 13/15
59 1,384 13K

James Tate @JamesTate121 · Apr 13
But rarely has stupidity been so nasty, or nastiness so stupid. He makes Nixon look trustworthy and George W look smart.
In fact, if Frankenstein decided to make a monster assembled entirely from human flaws - he would make a Trump. 14/15

The New York Times @nytimes

Tucker Carlson, the host of the most-watched show on prime-time cable news, uses a simple narrative to instill fear in his viewers. To understand how he promotes extremist ideas and conspiracy theories, we analyzed 1,150 episodes. Here's what we found. nyti.ms/3y8DfBF

On Carlson's show, he pits the "ruling class" (what he often refers to as "they") against "you," his viewers, who are part of a Fox News audience that is 92 percent white and overwhelmingly older, according to Nielsen data. "They" threaten everything "you" believe in.

According to Carlson, "they" include Democratic (and some Republican) officials, members of the media, Big Tech executives, academics, sports and Hollywood stars, and others. "They," he says, don't care about "you," "your children" or "your grandchildren." nyti.ms/3F2jFZb

Carlson referred to this "ruling class" in more than 800 of his 1,150 episodes from the beginning of his show in November 2016 through 2021, the extent of our analysis. From 2020 on, he pushed this theory in nearly every episode. nyti.ms/3F2jFZb

Carlson has promoted the idea of discrimination against white people (in more than 600 episodes) and has warned of shifts in gender norms that will threaten masculinity and lead to falling birthrates (in more than 200 episodes). nyti.ms/3F2jFZb

The New York Times @nytimes · 11h
Carlson has used rhetoric related to an unfounded racist conspiracy theory that falling birthrates and immigration are leading to the replacement of white people. Versions of "replacement theory" have been promoted by extremists and have helped inspire mass shootings.

In earlier years, Carlson regularly interviewed guests who debated him on issues, but he has recently devoted far less airtime to opposing views. Of nearly 7,000 guest appearances since 2016, about 1,000 of them contradicted him. nyti.ms/3F2jFZb

As the number of opposing guests on Carlson's show shrank, the length of his monologues has become far longer — typically more than 10 uninterrupted minutes per episode. nyti.ms/3F2jFZb

Carlson's segments often end up in the same place: the destruction of society (600 episodes). He devoted five times as many hours to this narrative of fear in 2021 as he did in 2017, the first full year of the show.

This morning I was on @MSNBC with @AliVelshi on his show @AliVelshi to talk about Elon Musk and Twitter. You cannot fix Twitter without forcing big changes to the business model. At Twitter's scale the incentives of that model make moderation a bad joke.

Ali Velshi @AliVelshi

The only way to force change at Twitter is to change the business model that rewards negative content, says @Moonalice. "If you want to fix this, if you want to save democracy, you have to do something about surveillance...
